TWO PERSONS BITTEN BY FEROCIOUS DOGS

Four-Year-Old Philip Pucinni May Die from Injuries.

WAS SEIZED BY THROAT

Attacked by Mad Dog while at Play at His Home at Windber—Mrs. Burt Fulton, of Hecla Park, Hurt while Trying to Seperate Fighting Animals.

Two distressing accidents in which Philip Pucinni a four-year-old child of Windber, and Mrs. Burt. Fulton, of Hecla Park, were bitten by dogs, have occured in the last few days. The child, which is a grandson of Wm. Hampton, of Bellefonte, who is employed at the Central R. R. of Pennsylvania round house, is in a critical condition and it is feared will die. The dog, which is believed to be mad, escaped.

The child was playing on the front porch of its home, at Windber on Saturday, when the dog flew at him and bit him in the throat. The child was thrown to the ground and his throat and face terribly lacerated before help could arrive. He was carried into his home and medical aid summoned. It was seen at once that the child's condition was serious. Investigation disclosed that the dog had been acting strangely for some time and that it undoubtedly was mad then it attacked the child.

The accident to Mrs. Fulton occured at Hecla Park, while a number of young persons from Bellefonte were dancing in the pavilion. Two dogs, owned by Howard Homan and L. H. McMullen, were fighting in the dancing pavilion and Mrs. Fulton undertook to seperate them. One of the dogs bit her twice in the left arm and once in the left foot. The injuries while very painful were not so serious as might have been the case had bystanders not come to her aid and driven off the dog. The wounds were immediately poulticed and Mrs. Fulton is rapidly recovering.

DOGS KILLINC SHEEP

Loss in Centre County This Summer Already Reaches $1000.

The killing of many sheep by dogs is reported from several points in the county. At the office of the County Commissioners it was yesterday stated that the amount paid out during the summer for sheep killed by dogs exceeds $1000.

Arthur Rothrock, a farmer residing at Pleasant Gap, several days ago had one sheep killed and two injured by dogs which escaped before they could be shot. He received $12 from the County Commissioners for his loss. Several weeks ago Samuel Zettle, of College township, had thirteen sheep killed by dogs. He was awarded $90.

In each instance where sheep have been killed in the last few weeks their owners are of the belief that the dogs did not belong in that vicinity. The dog which killed Mr. Rothrock's sheep was large and had a black, woolly coat. Mr. Rothrock shot at the dog but unfortunately missed it. The dog had not been seen about Pleasant Gap before that night. Mr. Rothrock has thus far been unable to learn where the dog belongs or the name of its owner.

Reunion of Co. E.

The 48th annual reunion of Co. E, 48th. Reg., will be held today in the Bellefonte G. A. R. rooms. General Beaver will have charge of the ceremonies and will present to Corporal W. H. Musser a gold mounted, gutta percha cane, with appropriate inscriptions; a gift from his comrades. Later the survivors of Co. E, with their wives, will be banqueted at the Brockerhoff House. The engagements in which Co. E participated follow: James Island, S. C.; Fort Pulaski, S. C.; South Mountain, Md.; Antietam, Md.; Fredericksburg, Va.; Jamestown, Ky.; Vicksburg, Miss.; Jackson, Miss,; Cumberland Gap, Md.; Blue Springs, Tenn.; Campbell Station, Tenn.; Wilderness, Va.; Cold Harbor, Va.; Spottsylvania, Va.; Petersburg, Va.; Palmer's Farm, Va.; Fredericksburg, 2nd time, and Lee's Surender.

William Henry Henderson.

Wm. Henry, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Alonza Henderson, died of cholera infantum, about 10 o'clock Saturday morning. It was aged about 5 months. The funeral took place at the home Monday, services being conducted by Rev, Patterson and interment made in the Schenck cemetery.

Send us $1 and we will send you all the news in "The Republican" each week for one year.

JEREMIAH M. DINGES

Old Soldier, Union Spy, Noted Surveyor, Dies at Boalsburg.

Jeremiah M. Dinges, a former Union spy, old soldier and noted surveyor, died Friday afternoon, about 4 o'clock, at his home, in Boalsburg, from heart trouble. He was born in Centre County and was aged 67 years, 3 months and 28 days.

Before the war Mr. Dinges was an expert surveyor, and was so well known that he was chosen by the national authorities to help superintend the surveying of the boundary line between United States and Canada. His share of the work was carried on in the wildest and most uncivilized part of the northwest and he had to contend with pathless forests and savage Indians.

During the war he was a member of Company I., 136th Reg. At the battle of Fredericksburg he was shot through the breast, captured, and taken to Libby Prison. After a sensational fight he made his escape and became one of the most daring of the Union spies. This period of his life was filled with adventure. At the close of the war he was troubled with his wound and removed to Boalsburg, where he engaged as a druggist.

Mr. Dinges was a full-degree Free Mason and a consistent member of the Reformed church.

He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Julia Dinges, a daughter, Mrs. Lavina Gerry, of Iowa, and a son, William Dinges, of Portland, Oregon.

The funeral was held, Monday morning, from the Reformed church, at Boalsburg, Rev. Black and Rev. Stonecypher, officiating. The services were in charge of the Centre Hall Lodge, Free Masons, of which Mr. Dinges was a member.

William Keeler.

William Keeler died, Sunday evening, about 6.10 o'clock, at the home of his daughtor, Mrs. Jerry Lutz, of Nittany, death having been caused by infirmities due to old age. He was born at Centre Furnace, October 30, 1837, and was aged 71 years 9 months and [illegible] survived by two brothers, Henry, of Mifflinburg, and Wallace, of Bellefonte, and the following children: Mrs. Jerry Lutz, of Nittany; Mrs. Charles Rathburn and Elmer Keeler, of Olean, N. Y.; Mrs. Joseph Bathurst, of Cattaragus, N. Y., Mrs. Charles Johnstonbaugh, of Curtin, and Mrs. William Confer, of Altoona. Mr. Keeler was a member of the United Evangelical church and an old soldier, serving three years, in the 148 Regiment.

The funeral was held yesterday from the house, Rev. J. C. Reeser, a presiding elder in the United Evangelical chuach officiating.

Rev. G. W. Fortney.

Rev. G. W. Fortney, a brother of D. F. Fortney, of this place, died on Monday, at his home, in Suffern, N. Y., after a three months' illness with creeping paralysis. Mr. Fortney was born near Centre Hall, Dec. 27, 1845, making him 64 years of age. He is survived by a widow, four children and one brother, D. F. Fortney, of Bellefonte. He graduated from Gettysburg College and was a minister in the Lutheran church. D. F. Fortney and Arthur B. Kimport left, yesterday, for Suffern, to attend the funeral, which will be held this afternoon.

Alice Frances Tuten.

Especially sad was the death of Alice Frances Tuten, the ten-and-one-half-months-old daughter of Register and Mrs. Farle C. Tuten, at one o'clock, Sunday afternoon. All that loving parents and the attending physician could do failed to save the life of the little sufferer and after lingering for several days her eyes closed in peaceful sleep. Death was due to intestinal trouble. Interment was made on Tuesday, at 4 o'clock, with Rev. Ambrose Schmidt in charge of the service.

Clark G. Crowell.

Clark C. Crowell, at one time a well known resident of Philipsburg, died on Friday at his home at Patton, as a result of injuries sustained by being knocked down by a runaway horse. He was standing in the street listening to an address on socialism at the time of the accident. He was a soldier of the Civil War, having been a member of Co. A, 58th Reg. Penna. Vols. Interment was made at Philipsburg on Monday.

William Lucas.

Wm. Lucas, the 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lucas, died Monday morning, following a brief illness, at his home in the Ridges. He is survived by his parents and several brothers and sisters. The funeral was held Monday afternoon.

HOLDS UP TRAIN AT LEWISTOWN NARROWS

Bandit, Single-Handed, Robs Pittsburg Express.

FIRES ON CONDUCTOR

Compels Express Messenger to Open Safe By Threatening to Blow up Car With Dynamite—Escapes into the Mountains With Money.

A train hold-up, rivalling the tales of fiction or the most daring acts of highwaymen in the West, was that early Tuesday morning, in the Lewistown Narrows, when a lone bandit stopped a Pennsylvania Railroad train, shot the conductor through the hand and robbed a car of a sum of money estimated at from $110 to several thousands of dollars. The most remarkable thing about it, aside from the fact that the deed was committed in this part of the country, was that the robber worked single-handed as he held several men at bay with revolvers and then escaped without a scratch into the mountains.

Armed posses are in pursuit of the bandit but up to the time of going to press he had not been overtaken. He is believed to be an Italian. The Pittsburg & Northern Express was the train held up. It left Philadelphia shortly after 9 o'clock, Monday night. The robbery was committed about 2 o'clock in the morning, at almost exactly the same spot where David Lewis, the noted highwayman, held up many stage coaches from 1815 to 1820, along the Old State Pike, which preceded the railroad.

An exploding dynamite cartridge brought the train to a sudden stop and Samuel Donnelly, the engineer, and also the fireman jumped to the groun[illegible] to [illegible] bandit manded them to be quiet. Conductor Isaac R. Poffenberger came running forward to see what was wrong when the bandit whipping out another revolver let fly five shots in rapid succession. One of the bullets passed thorugh Poffenberger's hand.

Without a moment's delay the bandit ordered the train crew to lead him to the express car and call the messenger. A threat to blow up the car with dynamite, which the bandit produced from his pockets prompted the express messenger to open the safe.

Just how much money was secured has not been made known. There were several small bags of coin in the express car. The bandit helped himself to these, filling his pockets and compeling the conductor to carry the remaining money into the woods at the roadside, at a point out of sight of the train. According to the railroad and express company officials the bags contained new pennies, which were mistaken by the bandit for gold, and that not much of value was secured. Another version is that considerable in gold was taken from the car and that the exact amount of the loss is being kept a secret until the bandit may be captured.

GIRL'S SAD DEATH

Fifteen-Year-Old Mary Goss Killed by Revolver Shot.

What was first reported as suicide but later pronounced an accident was the death, at McEwansville, near Watsontown, Monday night, of 15-year-old Mary Goss, formerly of Pine Grove. She was handling a revolver, according to the coroner's investigation, when the weapon exploded and the bullet pierced her heart. Her mother, Mrs. Frances Goss, hearing the report of the explosion revolver, rushed into the room to find the young girl dead.

Mrs. Goss, who is well known in Pine Grove, was at one time a matron at State College and later was housekeeper for Dr. Louis R. Tryon, at Bellefonte. She is a cousin of John Fisher, baggagemaster on the Lewisburg & Tyrone line, and a niece of Dr. Fisher, of Zion. Mrs. Goss was well known in Bellefonte, having frequently visited at the home of Philip Beezer. The body of the unfortunate girl was taken to Pine Grove for interment.

David Alexander Richards.

David Alexander Richards died Saturday night about 12 o'clock, at his home in Julian, following a five weeks' illness with typhoid pneumonia. He was about 35 years old and is survived by a widow, Mrs. Sarah Richards, and three children. The funeral was held Tuesday morning from the United Brethren church, of which he was a member, Rev. Ake conducted the services. Interment was made at Julian.

NEW FIRM AT CLARENCE

Prominent Business Men Take Over Supply Co. at That Place.

An important business change is being consummated at the hustling town of Clarence, whereby several prominent business men are taking over The Clarence Supply Company. The name of the new firm is the "Clarence Supply Co., Ltd." The officers of the new company [illegible] Chambers, vice president, and Charles M. Shaut, secretary and treasurer. The directors are Mr. Pitt, Mr. Chambers, Mr. Shaut, Jenkin David and James F. Uzzle, Jr.

The Clarence Supply Company is a well known and thoroughly established institution in that end of the county. Its officers and directors are business men of long experience and fully qualified to continue the extensive business enjoyed in the past. "The Republican" extends best wishes for many years of good luck and prosperity.

Secures Larger Quarters.

Since Henry Kline has launched into the shoe business his trade has been increasing so rapidly that he has found it necessary to secure larger quarters. On March 1st. he will move his store from High street to the large room occupied by M. C. Gephart, on Allegheny street. If he is able to find a sub-tenant for his High street location Mr. Kline will move before March 1st. Looks pretty good for the "Just Wright" shoes. Mr. Gephart was in Altoona yesterday. It is understood, however, that he will secure another location in Bellefonte.

Fox—Brachbill.

Miss Grace E. Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fox, and Charles B. Brachbill, son of Wm. R. Brachbill, surprised their many friends, Friday, by stealing away to Huntingdon, where in the afternoon they were married. The young couple then departed on a short honey-moon to eastern cities. Miss Fox is a very popular young lady, while "Charley" Brachbill is one of the best and jolliest fellows in town. Mr. and Mrs. Brachbill will make their home in Bellefonte. "The Republican" joins their many friends in extending hearty congratulations.

Flick—Baudis.

Isadora G. Flick, of Fleming, and Edward H. Baudis, of Benore, were married, Friday, at Altoona, by Justice of the Peace Thomas D. Crawford. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flick, of Fleming, while the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Baudis, of Benore.

Alleged Theft.

Harry Walker, of Boggs township, was arrested, Monday, by Harry P. Confer, of Yarnell, charged with stealing $25 from the latter's store, while loitering there, Saturday night. The defendent gave bail to the amount of $300 and will be given a hearing next Tuesday.

Resumes Orchard Inspection.

Inspection of orchards in Centre County will be resumed next week. T. C. Foster will again be in charge. Announcement has not been made as to the place where the inspection will be begun.

GAMBLING KILLS NEW BASE BALL LEAGUE

Bellefonte Withdraws in Interest of Honest Sport.

LOCK HAVEN BLAMED

Bitter Rivalry Between that Town and Renovo Leads to Employment of Professional Players—Bellefonte Sentiment Sustains Management.

Gambling has killed the Central Pennsylvania Base Ball League. It formally disbanded at a meeting, at Lock Haven, Monday night. Refusing to continue with the league when it became apparent that Lock Haven was padding its team with professional players, Bellefonte formally withdrew and cancelled all games with Lock Haven, Jersey Shore and Renovo.

The Bellefonte team yesterday played its last game at home for the season, being defeated by Tyrone, 8-2. The Bellefonte team will disband on Monday night.

Bitter rivalry between Lock Haven and Renovo led to the conditions which prompted Bellefonte to make a flat demand for clean base ball. Renovo, some weeks ago, "cleaned up" Lock Haven gamblers to the tune of several hundred dollars. Shortly after this Lock Haven hired a professional battery, stored it in a hotel room at Renovo and plunged in betting on a victory. Renovo was "cleaned up," losing from $500 to $800. This marked the beginning of the end.

Lock Haven cancelled its game with Bellefonte, on Thursday, last, claiming that the grounds were too wet to play. The real reason was that Lock Haven wanted the game deferred a day until McInnes, a professional pitcher; Newashee, a professional catcher and one or two other professionals might arrive. They [illegible] hired for a few games only after Lock Haven gamblers expected to make a killing."

Padded with its professionals Lock Haven came to Bellefonte on Friday winning 9 to 5. They could have won 9 or 19 to 0, as easily as not. Managers Cunningham and Harris, for Bellefonte, protested the game in advance and insisted that the umpire publicly announce this fact and also that all bets were off. A crowd of Lock Haven gamblers, who had followed that team here and who failed to rob Bellefonters returned home that night threatening revenge on Managers Cunningham and Harris. They did not have the nerve to carry out a threat to "do up" the Bellefonte managers who also were on the night train to Lock Haven, enroute to Renovo.

On Monday afternoon a number of Bellefonte business men held a meeting and discussed the situation. The proposition before them was that of resorting to the methods of Lock Havenor withdrawing from the league in the interest of honest base ball. It was the overwhelming sentiment that immediate withdrawal from the league was necessary if base ball at Bellefonte was not to be killed for several years to come. As a result of the meeting the following formal notice of withdrawal was addressed to Dr. George D. Green, president of the league, at Lock Haven:

Dr. George D. Green, President Central Penna. League, Lock Haven, Pa.

DEAR SIR: I write to confirm my conversation by telephone today with Mr. O'Reilly, the secretary of the league, in which I notified him that the Bellefonte Base Ball Club has withdrawn from the Central Pennsylvania League, and doing so we desire to state our reasons.

Our conception of the purpose of the league was to play good but clean base ball in honest and straightforward rivalry among the communities interested in the respective clubs and we think that we have maintained that standard throughout. Recent developments have convinced us that this original purpose of the league is not being maintained. In support of this assertion we would particularly refer to the disregard which has lately been shown to a resolution adopted at a recent meeting of the league at Lock Haven, to the effect that any players signed by any of the clubs from and after the date of that meeting were to be bona fide players of such club and should remain with the club and upon its salary list for the balance of the season.

We regret very much that we are forced to take this position but we are satisfied that it is no longer possible to maintain the character of base ball intended when we entered the league; and this is the only kind of base ball which our club will play or our community countenance.

We regret this the more because our communities are deprived of the character of base ball which this league presented to its supporters and patrons before such practices were indulged in. The contests were close, good ball was played and our communities had a sport that was fine and clean between evenly matched teams. The practices that are now indulged in can do nothing else than degrade the spirit of the game and are calculated to produce nothing more than a mere gambling contest.

Very truly yours,

J. MITCHELL CUNNINGHAM,
Mgr. Bellefonte Base Ball Club.

Lock Haven blames the collapse of the league on Renovo. The fact remains that Lock Haven sacrificed several fine local players, like Claster, O'Reilly and Peck, and loaded down its team with professionals; that this was done at a time when Lock Haven was at the head of the league and all four teams were evenly matched, and that, whether a coincidence or not, the professional players and the gamblers appeared at the same time.

ADDITIONS TO FACULTY

Eighteen New Professors Enrolled at State College.

A number of additions to the faculty of the Pennsylvania State College have been announced by the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees, as follows:

School of Agriculture W. A. Cochel, of Purdue University, professor of animal husbandry; William D. Clark, of Yale University Forest School, instructor in forestry; Homer W. Jackson, of Cambridge, Ohio, instructor in poultry husbandry; H. E. Toomer, of the North Carolina Experiment Station, assistant chemist.

School of Engineering, L. A. Harding previously with Harding and Cummins, of Lancaster, professor of mechanical engineering; H. W. Slaughter, of the Georgia School of Technology, instructor in Electrical Engineering; Charles L. Armsby, previously with the DuPont Powder Company, of Wilmington, Del. instructor in Civil engineering; H. W. Snell, of the Univ[illegible] instructor in shop work; T. A. H. Teeter, of Purdue University, instructor in mechanics and materials of construction; Sidney L. Ruggles, of Dartmouth College, assistant in civil engineering; C. M. Martsolf, Class of '09, assistant in electrical laboratory; P. E. Thomas, Class of '09 assistant in drawing.

Davis, of the University of Indiana, instructor in mathematics; J. Frank Jones, of Swarthmore, College, instructor in English.

School of Natural Science, William R. Ham, of the University of Maine, professor of physics; W. P. Davey, of the University of Chicago, instructor in physics.

Ill With Typhoid Fever.

One death, that of David Neese, at his home near Shiloh Church, and several persons ill with typhoid fever is attributed by physicians to impure water in a cistern on a farm, at Rock Springs. To prevent further spread of the disease from that source the attending physicians ordered the cistern closed. Analysis of the water showed it to be alive with typhoid germs. David Neese, who was infected by the water and died, was a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Neese, and was 18 years old. He is survived by his parents, three sisters and two brothers. The funeral was held on Tuesday and was private owing to the serious condition of his sister, Mary, who is also ill with typhoid.

Miss Nan Hoy, of Bellefonte, a sister of Mrs. W. Fred Reynolds, who was at Rock Springs, was removed to the Bellefonte Hospital, suffering, according to her physicians, with bilious fever.

Base Ball Special Train.

If one hundred persons will make the trip the Central R. R. of Penna. will run a special train to Renovo, Monday, Labor Day, for the big exhibition double-header between the Bellefonte and Renovo teams. Frank Warfield, for the railroad company, has informed Managers Cunningham and Harris that with one hundred persons taking the excursion the round fare between Bellefonte and Mill Hall will be fifty cents. The round fare between Lock Haven and Renovo is $1.12. It is proposed to run the special in the morning in time to connect at Lock Haven with the 8 o'clock train for Renovo, leaving the latter place at 5 o'clock in the afternoon and arriving home at 9.40 o'clock that night. Bellefonte will secure one-half the gate receipts for the two games at Renovo. This is a chance for a great day of sport.

The Man From Home

A Novelization of the Play of the Same Name

By BOOTH TARKINGTON and HARRY LEON WILSON

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association

Lord Hawcastle stepped close to him.

"If this fellow countryman of yours were assured that the law would be permitted to take its course if a favorable answer to a certain question were not received in an hour within that hotel, what, in your opinion, would the answer be?"

Pike looked up from the letter he was twisting in his hands, and his thin shoulders took on a squarer attitude. He looked his antagonist squarely in the eye, but he did not raise the tone of his voice.

"It would depend a good deal on which of my countrymen you caught. If it depended on the one I know best he'd tell you he'd see you in hades first."

For an instant the earl looked fixedly at Daniel, and his face went red and white by turns. There was a dangerous flash in his eyes, and he stepped a trifle closer and half raised his walking stick. Then, with a muttered oath, he dropped it, picked up his hat from the bench where he had thrown it and walked to the hotel steps.

"You have an hour," he said, menacingly turning. "At the end of that time—we will know what to do."

Daniel must have stood there ten minutes after Hawcastle had gone, and the twilight came down and enveloped him with its softness. As the lights came out here and there he turned and looked over at the windows of Von Grollerhagen's suit and noted the shadow still on the window blind.

"Looks to me like doc's in this thing and ought to be told," he murmured.

He found his way slowly across the grass and up the steps and in another moment tapped upon the door of the German's rooms. The door was opened by Ribiere, who informed him that Von Grollerhagen was dressing. He found his friend adjusting his white cravat before a mirror.

Within five minutes he had acquainted the other with all that had passed [illegible] Grollerhagen decided to treat the matter seriously.

"Pouf!" he said. "Surely you can trust this Lord Hawcastle not to mention it. He must know that the consequences for you as well as for me would be, to say the least, disastrous. Surely you made that clear to him."

Daniel smiled gently.

"No," he answered grimly. "He made it clear to me. Two years in jail, and if I don't make up my mind in fifty minutes from now to do what he wants me to do"—

"What is it that he wants you to do?" asked the German.

"The young lady's father trusted me to look after her, and if I won't promise to let her pay £150,000 for that—well, you've seen it around here, haven't you?"

"I have observed it, if you refer to the son of Lord Hawcastle," answered Von Grollerhagen gravely.

"Well, if I don't agree to that Ivanoff goes to Siberia and you and I to jail."

Von Grollerhagen looked at him quickly.

"He threatens that! What do you intend to do?"

"I can't agree. There wouldn't be any trouble to it if it was only me. They could land me for two years or twenty. But I can't do what they want, even to let you and Ivanoff out. It ain't my money. All I can do is to hint that you get out right away. Ivanoff can't go. They've got a ring around this place."

"You could get away, too, my friend," said the German, watching him softly. "You had not thought of that?"

"No, sir, and I'm not going to think of it. But you"—

"As for me, I shall go," said Von Grollerhagen, standing up.

"Well, that's part of the load off my mind. I haven't had the nerve to tell that poor fellow in there, though."

Von Grollerhagen motioned to Ribiere.

"Appellez le monsieur la!" he commanded and pointed to the other door of the chamber. The man opened it at once and beckoned to Ivanoff.

"Ivanoff, some unexpected difficulties have arisen," said the German. "The police have discovered your presence here, and persons who wish evil to my friend have threatened to make trouble. He can do nothing further to save you unless he betrays a sacred trust."

"It's the truth, old man," said Daniel feelingly. "I can't do it."

For a moment the Russian refugee staggered and supported himself with his hand on the table. Then he looked up.

"I thank you for what you have tried to do."

Von Grollerhagen went on:

"In the meantime my friend believes Naples a safe place for me. And so auf wiedersehen."

Pike extended his hand, which the German took.

"Goodby, doc, and God bless you!" he said. And Von Grollerhagen squeezed Pike's fingers.

"To our next meeting," he said and in a moment was gone.

CHAPTER XV.

"HE'S A RUSSIAN NOBLE!"

THE instant he had disappeared Ivanoff crossed rapidly to the small table near the bedroom and picked up a cigarette from a box that lay there with a bottle.

"I thought so. Russian!" he said, and in answer to Pike's look of inquiry went on. "That man, your friend, who calls himself Von Grollerhagen, is not a German—he is a Russian—not only that—he is a Russian noble. I see it in a hundred ways that you cannot."

"He helped us this afternoon," said Daniel, but Ivanoff did not seem to hear him.

"I have felt it inevitable that I should go back to Siberia ever since I came here"—

"Perhaps"— began Daniel, but the other interrupted.

"There is no 'perhaps' for me. There has never been a 'perhaps' since I met Helene, my wife—she who sent me to the mines, she and my dear English friend."

For a moment Daniel was thoughtful; then he looked up quickly.

"What was his name?" he asked.

"Glenwood—I shall never forget it," the Russian replied. "He had contracts with the ministry of finance. He supplied hydraulic machinery to the government. The name Glenwood means nothing to you, and there are a million Helenes in France. I prayed God to let me meet them before I was taken, but"— He paused as a knock came upon the door. "It is the carabinieri!" he said hoarsely and shrank back.

"Not yet," answered Pike quietly. "Go back to your room. We won't throw our hands into the discard until we're called, and I guess we'll keep on raising." He waited a moment until Ivanoff had retired and then opened the door. Mariano stood without bowing.

"Miladi Creech—she ask you would speak with her a few minutes," he said.

"Where is she?" asked Pike.

"Here, sir," replied the man.

"Tell her to come right in. Ah, come in, ma'am," he went on as Lady Creech appeared in the doorway. When he had closed the door behind her she said coldly:

"My brother-in-law feels that some one well acquainted with Miss Granger-Simpson's ambitions and her inner nature should put the case finally to you before we proceed to extremities," she said.

"Yes, ma'am," answered Daniel.

"My brother-in-law has made us aware of the state of affairs, and we are all quite in sympathy as to what should be done to you, but in the kindness of our hearts we condone your [illegible] demands."

Daniel looked at his watch.

"In twenty minutes?" he asked.

"In twenty minutes," she replied frigidly.

"You say he told all of you. Did he tell Miss Ethel?" Daniel asked.

"It has not been thought proper. Young girls should be shielded from everything disagreeable," she answered pompously, and Daniel grinned.

"Yes, ma'am," he said. "That was the idea that got me into this trouble. You see, I know your interest in her I've handled all her accounts"—

"If you don't mind we'll omit all tradesmanlike references," remarked the old lady acidly. "It has been suggested that you make this opposition

"I guess we'll keep on raising."

because you have a sentimental interest in the young lady yourself. We can comprehend no other grounds."

"Me!" echoed Daniel in surprise. "You can't comprehend.' But you can comprehend I could have no hope, can't you?"

"One never knows," replied Lady Creech loftily. "We had thought to offer her an alliance with a family that for 700 years"—

"Yes, ma'am, I know—Crecy and Agincourt," interjected Pike, but she paid no attention.

—"has never been sullied by the low ideals of trade and barter"—

"Wait a minute, Mrs. Creech," said Daniel quickly, tugging at his coat pocket. "I've got a letter right here that tells me your brother-in-law was in business—and I respect him for it—only a few years ago."

"A letter from whom?" demanded the lady angrily, rising.

"Jim Cooley, our vice consul at London. He says Mr. Hawcastle"—

"Mr. Hawcastle!" ejaculated Lady Creech.

"Well, I can call a person cap or doc or colonel, but I don't just know how to use the words you have over here for those things. I don't mean any disrespect. Just let me run on in my own way. Jim says your brother-in-law was in business in Russia"—he stopped suddenly, for an idea had occurred to him—"in business in Russia!" he repeated dazedly. "Why didn't I think of that"—

"Since some of your officials have been spying"— Lady Creech began, but he interrupted.

"Never mind. He was in business in Russia. I don't say he was peddling shoestrings or wienerwurst"—she screamed. "He was probably"—he stopped a moment and looked at her.

"Have you ever heard the name of—Glenwood?" he asked quickly.

"He did not have contracts with the government for hydraulic machinery, I suppose?" he asked tensely. The old woman tossed her head.

"Even if he did, he protected the historic name," she replied proudly.

"I believe you!" said Daniel fervently. "Have you ever heard the name of—Glenwood?" he asked quickly.

"Is your mind wandering?" asked Lady Creech. "Glenwood Priory is the name of the property Hawcastle inherited from his mother. Can you state its connection with the subject?"

Daniel almost staggered with the thought—the knowledge that came to him. He looked up.

"That's how he protected it," he said. "He took the name of—Glenwood. God moves in a mysterious way his wonders to perform! Lady Creech, tell your brother-in-law he can have his answer here—in ten minutes."

As she swept from the room in dignified amazement Pike sank into a [illegible] wearifulness.

CHAPTER XVI.

A WHISPER OF VENGANCE.

THE moment Lady Creech had gone Daniel smiled broadly for the first time since he had set eyes upon Ivanoff. He could see his way clear now to the thorough accomplishment of his mission, and he mentally thanked heaven for putting into his hands such a weapon as the Russian fugitive.

"Glenwood, eh? And he protected the historic name of St. Aubyn, that noble earl; protected it on the surface while he dragged it in the mire of another man's disgrace and humiliation in private. He was a sweet lot, that noble earl! He carried himself high, and his keen eye lost no whit of its dignity and importance from that conscience that must be uneasy within his breast."

And the woman, too, "Helene." Ivanoff had called her. So they had stuck together all those ten years, with Lady Creech as a most complaisant and discreet chaperon—but that couldn't be, for, whatever else Lady Creech might be, worldly wise and haughty, she was at least an English gentlewoman at heart, and she would have starved rather than connive at a scandal of that sort.

No, Daniel reflected, he would have to leave Lady Creech out of the mess, even though she was a bitter old dame. But Hawcastle should feel the touch of the iron. It should burn him deeply, and the scar would remain.

And the fair countess, who was angling for that addle pated Horace and his share of the estate! That woman, who had deliberately sent a good man to what was worse than death, should he have any pity for her? Not for a single instant.

He leaped up and hastily crossed the room to the writing desk, scribbled a note and, before he put it in the envelope, rang the bell.

As he sealed the note Mariano tapped discreetly at the door, and Pike called:

"Come in!"

"Look here, Mariano, I want you to take this note to Miss Simpson," he said quickly.

"To Mees Granger-Seempsone?" asked the man deferentially.

"Yes. Do you know where she is?"

"She walk upon the terrace alone, sair," replied Mariano.

"Then give it to her yourself—to no one else—and do it now!" he went on emphatically, pushing the servant out of the door in his haste. When he had closed it he went to the door of the suit, threw it open and called:

"Ivanoff!"

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION SUBMITTED TO THE CITIZENS OF THIS COMMONWEALTH FOR THEIR APPROVAL OR REJECTION, BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA, AND PUBLISHED BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH, IN PURSUANCE OF ARTICLE XVIII OF THE CONSTITUTION.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing amendments to sections eight and twenty-one of article four, sections eleven and twelve of article five, sections two, three, and fourteen of article eight, section one of article twelve, and sections two and seven of article fourteen, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, and providing a schedule for carrying the amendments into effect.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following are proposed as amendments to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:—

Amendment One—To Article Four, Section Eight.

Section 2. Amend section eight of article four of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, which reads as follows:—

"He shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate, appoint a Secretary of the Commonwealth and an Attorney General during pleasure, a Superintendent of Public Instruction for four years, and such other officers of the Commonwealth as he is or may be authorized by the Constitution or by law to appoint; he shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen, in offices to which he may appoint, during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session; he shall have power to fill any vacancy that may happen, during the recess of the Senate, in the office of Auditor General, State Treasurer, Secretary of Internal Affairs or Superintendent of Public Instruction, in a judicial office, or in any other elective office which he is or may be authorized to fill; if the vacancy shall happen during the session of the Senate, the Governor shall nominate to the Senate, before their final adjournment, a proper person to fill said vacancy; but in any such case of vacancy, in an elective office, a person shall be chosen to said office at the next general election, unless the vacancy shall happen within three calendar months immediately preceding such election, in which case the election for said office shall be held at the second succeeding general election. In acting on executive nominations the Senate shall sit with open doors, and, in confirming or rejecting the nominations of the Governor, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and shall be entered on the journal," so as to read as follows:—

He shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate, appoint a Secretary of the Commonwealth and an Attorney General during pleasure, a Superintendent of Public Instruction for four years, and such other officers of the Commonwealth as he is or may be authorized by the Constitution or by law to appoint; he shall have power to fill all vacancies that may happen, in offices to which he may appoint, during the recess of the Senate, by granting commissions which shall expire at the end of their next session; he shall have power to fill any vacancy that may happen during the recess of the Senate, in the office of Auditor General, State Treasurer, Secretary of Internal Affairs or Superintendent of Public Instruction, in a judicial office, or in any other elective office which he is or may be authorized to fill; if the vacancy shall happen during the session of the Senate, the Governor shall nominate to the Senate, before their final adjournment, a proper person to fill said vacancy; but in any such case of vacancy, in an elective office, a person shall be chosen to said office on the next election day appropriate to such office according to the provisions of this Constitution, unless the vacancy shall happen within two calendar months immediately preceding such election day in which case the election for said office shall be held on the second succeeding election day appropriate to such office. In acting on executive nominations the Senate shall sit with open doors, and, in confirming or rejecting the nominations of the Governor, the vote shall be taken by yeas and nays, and shall be entered on the journal.

Amendment Two—To Article Four, Section Twenty-one.

Section 2. Amend section twenty-one of article four, which reads as follows:—

"The term of the Secretary of Internal Affairs shall be four years; of the Auditor General three years; and of the State Treasurer two years. These officers shall be chosen by the qualified electors of the State at general elections. No person elected to the office of Auditor General or State Treasurer shall be capable of holding the same office for two consecutive terms," so as to read:—

The term of the Secretary of Internal Affairs, the Auditor General, and the State Treasurer shall each be four years and they shall be chosen by the qualified electors of the State at general elections, but a State Treasurer, elected in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine shall serve for three years, and his successors shall be elected at the general election in the year one thousand nine hundred and twelve, and in every fourth year thereafter. No person elected to the office of Auditor General or State Treasurer shall be capable of holding the same office for two consecutive terms.

Amendment Three—To Article Five, Section Eleven.

Section 3. Amend section eleven of article five, which reads as follows:—

"Except as otherwise provided in this Constitution, justices of the peace or aldermen shall be elected in the several wards, districts, boroughs and townships at the time of the election of constables by the qualified electors thereof, in such manner as shall be directed by law, and shall be commissioned by the Governor for a term of five years. No township, ward, district or borough shall elect more than two justices of the peace or aldermen without the consent of a majority of the qualified electors within such township, ward or borough; no person shall be elected to such office unless he shall have resided within the township, borough, ward or district for one year next preceding his election. In cities containing over fifty thousand inhabitants, not more than one alderman shall be elected in each ward or district," so as to read:—

Except as otherwise provided in this Constitution, justices of the peace or aldermen shall be elected in the several wards, districts, boroughs or townships by the qualified electors thereof, at the municipal election, in such manner as shall be directed by law, and shall be commissioned by the Governor for a term of six years. No township, ward, district or borough shall elect more than two justices of the peace or aldermen without the consent of a majority of the qualified electors within such township, ward or borough; no person shall be elected to such office unless he shall have resided within the township, borough, ward or district for one year next preceding his election. In cities containing over fifty thousand inhabitants, not more than one alderman shall be elected in each ward or district.

Amendment Four—To Article Five, Section Twelve.

Section 5. Amend section twelve of article five of the Constituton, which reads as follows:—

"In Philadelphia there shall be established, for each thirty thousand inhabitants, one court, not of record, of police and civil causes, with jurisdiction not exceeding one hundred dollars; such courts shall be held by magistrates whose term of office shall be five years and they shall be elected on general ticket by the qualified voters at large; and in the election of the said magistrates no voter shall vote for more than two-thirds of the number of persons to be elected when more than one are to be chosen; they shall be compensated only by fixed salaries, to be paid by said county; and shall exercise such jurisdiction, civil and criminal, except as herein provided, as is now exercised by aldermen, subject to such changes, not involving an increase of civil jurisdiction or conferring political duties, as may be made by law. In Philadelphia the office of alderman is abolished."

Amendment Five—To Article Eight, Section Two.

Section 6. Amend section two of article eight, which reads as follows:—

"The general election shall be held annually on the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November, but the General Assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each House consenting thereto," so as to read:—

The general election shall be held biennially on the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each even-numbered year, but the General Assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each House consenting thereto: Provided, That such election shall always be held in an even-numbered year.

Amendment Six—To Article Eight, Section Three.

Section 7. Amend section three of article eight, which reads as follows:—

"All elections for city, ward, borough and township officers, for regular terms of service, shall be held on the third Tuesday of February," so as to read:—

All judges elected by the electors of the State at large may be elected at either a general or municipal election, as circumstances may require. All elections for judges of the courts for the several judicial districts, and for county, city, ward, borough, and township officers for regular terms of service, shall be held on the municipal election day; namely, the Tuesday next following the first Monday of November in each odd-numbered year, but the General Assembly may by law fix a different day, two-thirds of all the members of each House consenting thereto: Provided, That such election shall always be held in an odd-numbered year.

Amendment Seven—To Article Eight, Section Fourteen.

Section 8. Amend section fourteen of article eight, which reads as follows:—

"District election boards shall consist of a judge and two inspectors, who shall be chosen annually by the citizens. Each elector shall have the right to vote for the judge and one inspector, and each inspector shall appoint one clerk. The first election [illegible] any new district shall be selected, and vacancies in election boards filled, as shall be provided by law. Election officers shall be privileged from arrest upon days of election, and while engaged in making up and transmitting returns, except upon warrant of a court of record or judge thereof, for an election fraud, for felony, or for wanton breach of the peace. In cities they may claim exemption from jury duty during their terms of service," so as to read:—

District election boards shall consist of a judge and two inspectors, who shall be chosen biennially, by the citizens at the municipal election; but the General Assembly may require said boards to be appointed in such manner as it may by law provide. Laws regulating the appointment of said boards may be enacted to apply to cities only: Provided, That such laws be uniform for cities of the same class. Each elector shall have the right to vote for the judge and one inspector, and each inspector shall appoint one clerk. The first election board for any new district shall be selected, and vacancies in election boards filled, as shall be provided by law. Election officers shall be privileged from arrest upon days of election, and while engaged in making up and transmitting returns, except upon warrant of a court of record or judge thereof, for an election fraud for felony, or for wanton breach of the peace. In cities they may claim exemption from jury duty during their terms of service.

Amendment Eight—To Article Twelve, Section One.

Section 9. Amend section one, article twelve, which reads as follows:—

"All officers, whose selection is not provided for in this Constitution, shall be elected or appointed as may be directed by law," so as to read:—

All officers, whose selection is not provided for in this Constitution, shall be elected or appointed as may be directed by law: Provided, That elections of State officers shall be held on a general election day, and elections of local officers shall be held on a municipal election day, except when, in either case, special elections may be required to fill unexpired terms.

Amendment Nine—To Article Fourteen, Section Two.

Section 10. Amend section two of article fourteen, which reads as follows:—

"County officers shall be elected at the general elections and shall hold their offices for the term of three years, beginning on the first Monday of January next after their election, and until their successors shall be duly qualified; all vacancies not otherwise provided for shall be filled in such manner as may be provided by law," so as to read:—

County officers shall be elected at the municipal elections and shall hold their offices for the term of four years, beginning on the first Monday of January next after their election, and until their successors shall be duly qualified; all vacancies not otherwise provided for shall be filled in such manner as may be provided by law.

Amendment Ten—To Article Fourteen, Section Seven.

Section 11. Amend section seven, article fourteen, which reads as follows:—

"Three county commissioners and three county auditors shall be elected in each county where such officers are chosen, in the year one thousand eight hundred and seventy-five and every third year thereafter; and in the election of said officers each qualified elector shall vote for no more than two persons, and the three persons having the highest number of votes shall be elected; any casual vacancy in the office of county commissioner or county auditor shall be filled, by the court of common pleas of the county in which such vacancy shall occur, by the appointment of an elector of the proper county who shall have voted for the commissioner or auditor whose place is to be filled," so as to read:—

Three county commissioners and three county auditors shall be elected in each county where such officers are chosen, in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven and every fourth year thereafter; and in the election of said officers each qualified elector shall vote for no more than two persons, and the three persons having the highest number of votes shall be elected; any casual vacancy in the office of county commissioner or county auditor shall be filled by the court of common pleas of the county in which such vacancy shall occur, by the appointment of an elector of the proper county who shall have voted for the commissioner or auditor whose place is to be filled.

Schedule for the Amendments.

Section 12. That no inconvenience may arise from the changes in the Constitution of the Commonwealth, and in order to carry the same into complete operation, it is hereby declared that—

In the case of officers elected by the people, all terms of office fixed by act of Assembly at an odd number of years shall each be lengthened one year, but the Legislature may change the length of the term, provided the terms for which such officers are elected shall always be for an even number of years.

The above extension of official terms shall not affect officers elected at the general election of one thousand nine hundred and eight; nor any city, ward, borough, township, or election division officers, whose terms of office, under existing law, end in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

In the year one thousand nine hundred and ten the municipal election shall be held on the third Tuesday of February, as heretofore; but all officers chosen at that election to an office the regular term of which is two years, and also all election officers and assessors chosen at that election, shall serve until the first Monday of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven. All officers chosen at that election to offices the term of which is now four years, or is made four years by the operation of these amendments on this schedule, shall serve until the first Monday of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and thirteen. All justices of the peace, magistrates, and aldermen, chosen at that election, shall serve until the first Monday of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and fifteen. After the year nineteen hundred and ten, and until the Legislature shall otherwise provide all terms of city, ward, borough, township, and election division officers shall begin on the first Monday of December in an odd-numbered year.

All city, ward, borough, and township officers holding office at the date of the approval of these amendments, whose terms of office may end in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven, shall continue to hold their offices until the first Monday of December of that year.

All judges of the courts for the several judicial districts, and also all county officers, holding office at the date of the approval of these amendments, whose terms of office may end in the year one thousand nine hundred and eleven, shall continue to hold their offices until the first Monday of January, one thousand nine hundred and twelve.

How to Fight the Flies.

Flies are responsible for the spread of contagious and infectious diseases.—They adhere to window panes, dishes and other perpendicular surfaces by means of minute globules of oil, and often their oily footprints are GERM LADEN. Flies should be excluded from sickrooms. They carry filth germs in, and they carry disease germs out. Food supplies should be particularly guarded. The same flies that are attracted to the food on the table and are so especially fond of milk likewise delight in filth, even of the most dangerous kinds, which they are sure to carry around with them on their feet. Fly maggots live and grow in manure and filth, and mature flies hover about the same material to lay their eggs and seek bits of food. Cleanliness about the kitchen and back yard, screen doors, window screens, fly paper and fly poisons are the housekeepers' principal weapons in warfare against flies.

The Tight Belt an Evil.

The belt should not be worn too tight in summer. Belts that are too tight AFFECT THE ACTION OF THE HEART and of the digestive organs vitally in many cases. Physicians assert that they frequently have cases of palpitation of the heart brought to their attention in summer caused primarily by the habit of wearing tight belts.

The tight belt cramps the stomach and interferes with the circulation of the blood.

The pressure it puts directly beneath the heart causes the beating of the heart to become so irregular as to affect the circulation and hence the condition of practically the entire body. Headache and shortness of breath are additional results, and continued wearing of a tight belt has been known to produce a chronic affection of the heart.

Men of the build known as "without hips" unfortunately find trouble in wearing a belt unless it is drawn in very tightly, and there seems no doubt that THEY SHOULD WEAR SUSPENDERS, no matter how uncomfortable they may prove.

Young boys are particularly prone to err in the matter of belts and should be carefully watched and instructed.

WAYS OF THE ORIENT.

Queer Ideas About Alleviating Bodily Suffering.

MAGIC CURES OF THE TURKS.

The Treatment to Which Crippled Children Are Subjected—Bunches of Garlic and Strings of Blue Beads as Panaceas Against All Kinds of Ills.

A stone strikes some part of the body of an oriental and inflicts a wound. The train of ideas that this accident would produce in his mind would run something like this: The stone is the cause of pain, the cause of the wound. It is the principal origin of the trouble. But the essence of every origin is hidden, secret and therefore sacred. The stone becomes an awe inspiring fetich. The wound is neglected. The fetich has to be propitiated. This simple illustration is borne out and supported by everyday experience which medical men encounter in the east.

Another instance may be derived from among the lower classes of the Greek population of Constantinople. A child falls and cuts his head. The first thought of the parent is to be sure not to wash and to bind up the wound, still less to call medical assistance, however grave the cut may turn out to be. This is always an afterthought, which very often comes so late that the help of a surgeon can prove of no use.

The first thing the father or mother of the injured child thinks of doing is to pour over the shoulder upon the place of the accident a libation of wine or sugared water and to whisper in performing this some mysterious formula supposed to possess supernatural efficacy against every form of evil.

The Moslems are addicted to the queerest practices for purposes of healing or alleviating bodily pain. A Turk, for instance, in distress or suffering from some disease, however severe, knows of no better remedy than to fix a piece of his dress, torn off with true oriental equanimity, to an iron bar of some saint's tomb or to drink water from a tumbler into which he has previously put a sheet of paper with writings from the Koran. Sometimes he will take a jar, the interior of which has been written all over with strange formulae and signs. He will then fill it with water, wait till these formulae and signs have been thoroughly dissolved and drink the singular solution with an absolute faith in its wonder working efficacy.

Sheltered by the somber cypresses of the great Mohammedan cemetery at Scutari (the ancient Chrysopolis on the Asiatic coast of the Bosporus) there stands in picturesque solitude the tomb of a horse. Every Friday afternoon Turkish mothers carry to that tomb their crippled children to be submitted by a select "khodja" (priest) to an extraordinary course of treatment. These children are dragged, with their diseased limbs dangling over the hillock, from one end of the tomb to the other and then back again in the same fashion. The occult influence emanating from this hillock is supposed to be an all efficient panacea.

It is not difficult to trace in this case the crude, imperfect association of ideas. The horse has long been considered an emblem of vigor, typifying, as Ruskin says, "the flow and force of life." Hence the belief of the oriental, inherited, no doubt, from the Greeks, in the all conquering virtue and influence of occult and mysterious effluvia which are supposed to emanate constantly from a horse's tomb.

The wearing of a necklace of blue beads or of garlic as a potent means of keeping away disease or of warding off the evil eye is quite a universal matter of sincere belief in the whole of Turkey. This superstition is shared, as is well known, by the lower classes of many a country in civilized eastern Europe. There, however, it is not so universal and flagrant as in the orient.

There is scarcely a house in the Moslem, Greek and Armenian districts of the population of Constantinople which has not hanging above its entrance door a collection of garlic and scarcely a beast of toil which has not attached to some part of it a string of blue beads. Among the uneducated it is impossible to find an individual who does not pin absolute faith to the all healing power of such charms, especially of blue beads, which are supposed to be an unfailing panacea against every possible ill.

Less general is the belief in the east in the baleful influence of the planets Saturn and Mars upon the constitution of the human body, upon its four cardinal humors—blood, phlegm, yellow bile and black bile. These planets are considered by some orientals, especially in the far south, as the unmistakable causes of all sorts of ailments. Woe unto him who begins any work when Saturn or Mars is in the ascendant.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

CIRCUSES.

The Old and the New and the Greatest Drawing Card.

Before the one ring days and going back a few centuries the circus was represented in the person of a mountebank, a thin visaged, clean shaven man who hitched his trapeze to the sturdy limb of a village oak and did feats to the ill concealed amazement of a people who respected God somewhat, but the devil and his black magic a great deal more.

A long and high jump this—from mountebank to modern hippodrome, from a man who lived under his hat to a tented city which houses as many as 25,000 people in one day and regularly furnishes food, shelter and transportation for 1,200 more, to say nothing of a hospital, a postoffice and a commissary where one can purchase almost anything from a postage stamp to a suit of overalls.

The big show today is as highly specialized and deviously organized as is our greatest business institution. Its maintenance costs a thousand dollars an hour. Yes, it's a long jump from the mountebank; but, after all, things haven't changed so much in some ways.

A man who was running a trick pony and dog show last year added a "thriller" to his program in the way of a dangerous flying trapeze act. To the delight of his pockets, but the intense disgust of his trainer's soul, the door receipts almost doubled. He had two men at the door one night who asked the outgoing crowds which part of the show they liked best—the trick animals or the acrobats. They answered as one, "The acrobats!"

Danger danger to other human lives and limbs—that's the drawing card, after all, excepting only the children who are too young to be gory minded and who find most delight in the clowns. We grownups like the "thrillers"—the more deadly the better. —William Allen Johnston in Harper's Weekly.

WHAT HE WAS TELLING HIM.

An Incident That Ended the Conversation at the Barber's.

"You are very bald, sir," said the barber to little Binks as the latter took up his position in the chair.

"What's that you say?" asked Binks pleasantly.

"I say you are very bald, sir," repeated the barber.

"Who is?" asked Binks.

"You, sir," said the barber.

"What paper did you see that in?" demanded Binks.

"What's that, sir?" asked the barber.

"What newspaper?" repeated Binks. "I read all the papers, but I didn't see any reference to this. Was it in one of the early editions of the evening papers?"

"Was what, sir?" queried the puzzled barber.

"This thing you were just telling me," said Binks.

"Why, I don't remember telling you" began the barber.

"About my being bald, you know," said Binks. "You said I was very bald, didn't you?"

"Yes," said the barber, "but I didn't mention the newspapers, sir. Why should it be in the newspapers, sir?"

"Why, because it's news, isn't it?" said Binks.

"I shouldn't say that, sir," said the barber.

"Well, if it isn't news, what in thunder did you tell me about it for?" demanded Binks. "I supposed you had read about it in one of the papers and had reached the conclusion that I didn't know it. If you find a mole under my left ear while shaving me, break it to me gently, please, and you may omit all mention of the fact that my beard is getting gray. I am trying to stave off a realization of the"—

But just then the barber accidentally ran his lather brush over Bink's mouth, and the conversation ceased.—Lippincott's.

The Day He Selected.

When Mr. Gladstone was alive he was once discussing with some friends at Hawarden castle the greatest day in the world's history. Each member of the group was asked to say on which day he, in the past or the future, would prefer to live, it being supposed that he should have his present knowledge, and afterward return to his present existence. Mr. Gladstone chose a day in Greece when Athens was at its highest glory.

Farm and Garden

BIG PROFIT IN HENS.

Poultry Business as Viewed by a Scientist of the Government.

That the egg industry affords an excellent opportunity for investment is the opinion of Professor Milo M. Hastings, scientific assistant animal husbandry office of the agricultural department at Washington. The best estimates available indicate that the income from poultry products is one of the four or five most important sources of the agricultural wealth of the nation. The proof of this statement is attributed to the fact that the price of eggs for the last ten or twelve years has shown not only an absolute rise, but a relative rise, when compared with the general average of values of either farm crops or food products.

One of the principal requirements generally considered is the degree of freshness. The rule, however, is sometimes variously applied. An egg forty-eight hours old that has lain in a wheat shock during a warm July rain would probably be swarming with bacteria and be absolutely unfit for food, while another egg stored eight months in a first class cold storage room would be of much better quality. For food all fresh eggs are practically equal. The tint of the yolk varies somewhat, being more yellow when green feed has been supplied the hens. The flavor of the egg is also influenced by the food given to the hen.

Particular attention is called to the loss sustained by reason of dirty eggs, broken eggs and fertile eggs exposed to heat. The loss of eggs that are actually rotten forms only about 1 to 2 per cent of the year's output.

The farmer receives 15 cents for a dozen eggs, the shipper ¾ of a cent, freight 1½ cents, receiver ½ cent, jobber 1¼ cents, candling 2 cents and gross profit to retailer 4 cents, making a dozen eggs cost the New York consumer about 25 cents.

The high price of strictly fresh eggs is counterbalanced by the price at which cold storage can be secured.

"The industry as a whole," Professor Hastings says, "is of great benefit to both the egg producer and the egg consumer. It has tended to level prices throughout the year and has resulted in a large increase in the fall and winter consumption of eggs. This means a larger total demand and a consequent increase in price."

The poultry shed shown in the illustration is a good type of house for hens that "give eggs." It has a curtain front which permits sufficient air and protects the layers. The curtains are of a length that prevent scratching of the shed. A good type of layer is shown in the picture of the Plymouth Rock hen, although there are other breeds.

Keeping Cream Sweet.

If properly cooled cream will keep much longer than milk, for the reason that it contains less milk serum or food for the action of bacteria. It should be kept in a pure atmosphere so as to prevent it from taking up flavors by absorption. If cream is kept in a cellar the walls should be whitewashed several times during the year. Lime is a great purifier. Never allow vegetables to remain in the same room in which cream is kept. During the daytime the cellar should be kept closed, but at night there should be thorough ventilation.

The Swiss Chard.

Swiss chard is growing in popularity. It is cultivated like the beet and is ready for use as a sort of substitute for asparagus within a few weeks after seeding. It lacks the richness of flavor of asparagus, but is a good substitute while the asparagus plantation is getting ready to bear. The long stalks are served as asparagus or as creamed celery, and the leaves may be cooked like spinach. Lucullus is the choicest variety.

I came across lately an old history of an arctic expedition which was very interesting. The captain took a favorite horse along, but an injury to his ONE caused him to be killed. The captain's feelings as he saw the body drifting TWO, as he stood on the THREE, were very pathetically described. The only signs of life were a FOUR and a FIVE sailing around in the air. The expedition was under the command of Sir John Franklin, SIX, and reached a latitude of 84 degrees 50 minutes SEVEN, the highest on record to that time.

Iced Bouillon.

Beef extract made quick iced bouillon at an impromptu luncheon the other day. Three cupfuls of hot water were flavored to taste with the extract, it was seasoned with salt and pepper, and a level tablespoonful of gelatin soaked soft in cold water was added, and when it was dissolved a tablespoonful of lemon juice was turned in and the bouillon was put on the ice. When served it was whipped with a fork until the jelly was in flakes and put into bouillon cups.

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ out of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 21 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 31 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces,

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. Jury Commissioner, —ARE you registered?

—CENTRE county is Republican. It is up to Republicans to keep it so.

—THE Taft smile, the new tariff and the business revival seem to go hand in hand.

—No Republican need hesitate about voting for Senator Sisson for Auditor General.

—CENTRE County Republicans will be much in evidence at the Grangers' picnic, at Centre Hall, Sept. 16; also at the polls in November.

—WILLIAM Jennings Bryan is about due for some sensational move to attract attention to him and incidentally advertise his lecture engagements. He might announce that Colonel Guffey is a real Democrat.

—LET every Republican in Centre county make up his mind that in the future he will vote the straight Republican ticket. It won't be long until the Democrats abandon faith, give up hope and depend entirely upon charity.

—DON'T hear much these days from the Bryan Democrats who this time last year thought they were pronouncing the benediction over Colonel James Madison Guffey. The Colonel is bossing them just as he did before their little "shindy."

—SOME Democrats find it difficult to pronounce the name of Judge von Moschzisker, the Republican nominee for Supreme Court Justice. One nice thing about it is that along about November nobody will find it difficult to pronounce the name of the Democratic nominee. It will be plain "Dennis."

—REPUBLICAN State Chairman Andrews, in a letter to the editor of "The Republican," expresses his desire to attend the Grangers' picnic, Sept. 16, if other engagements do not interfere. He expects to open the State headquarters at Philadelphia, about Sept. 13, and this fact may prevent his spending a day with us.

—UNITED States Senator George T. Oliver will be at the Grangers' picnic, Thursday, Sept. 16. Centre County Republicans who have not met Senator Oliver should avail themselves of this opportunity to become acquainted with him. They will find him a thorough Republican, an able Senator and every inch a gentleman.

Guilty of Deception.

"The Republican" has waited several weeks for the "Democratic Watchman" to do the honorable thing and frankly acknowledge that it was honestly mistaken when, under the caption, "Judicial Power Perverted," it said in regard to the 2-cent fare law:

> "But Judge von Moschzisker handed down a decision that the law was unconstitutional for the reason the rate was confiscatory. It was neither, for all the lines except the main line of the Pennsylvania still continue it, but von Moschzisker wanted to serve the corporations rather than the people and perverted his power to achieve that result."

Two weeks ago "The Republican" informed the "Watchman" that it was in error in regard to the Republican nominee for Supreme Court Justice. The fact that the "Watchman" has by its brazen silence refused to make amends must be accepted as intentional deception. Its reference to Judge von Moschzisker is absolutely false. The 2-cent fare case was never before Judge von Moschzisker. We challenge the "Watchman" on this.

We also reiterate that the "Watchman" was guilty of hypocrisy when it accused Judge von Moschzisker of perversion of power in declaring the judges' salary increase act to be constitutional. We have waited in vain for the "Watchman" to deny or affirm the assertion in "The Republican" that Judge von Moschzisker was sustained by the Supreme Court and that the man who wrote the opinion was the distinguished jurist and Democrat, Justice Samuel Gustine Thompson.

PREPARING LIST OF LOCAL CORPORATIONS

Int. Revenue Collector Rees Receives Instructions.

FOR NEW EXCISE TAX

All Centre County Concerns to be Classified and Names Forwarded to Washington—First Information as to How They will be Grouped.

Instructions have been issued to Collectors of Internal Revenue to proceed at once to the preparation of lists of corporations in their respective districts in compliance with the provisions of the new tariff law. Collector G. W. Rees, who has charge of this district, has been notified to prepare such a list, classifying the several corporations into groups, and forward the same to Washington to be filed.

This is the first information in regard to the proposed excise tax received by Centre County corporations since the tariff law was passed by Congress. Just how corporations will be classified is explained in the instructions to Collector Rees, which are as follows:

To Collectors of Internal Revenue:

Attention is specially called to Section 38 of the Act of August 5, 1909, imposing on certain corporations, joint stock companies, associations and insurance companies a special excise tax to be paid annually.

In view of the large number of corporations, companies and associations subject to this tax, collectors of internal revenue will, on receipt of this circular, at once proceed to thoroughly canvass their districts, and as soon as possible, furnish this office with a list of all corporations, companies and associations organized in their districts, setting forth the amount of capital stock and principal place of business of each.

They will also furnish a separate list of all corporations, companies and associations organized elsewhere, including such as are organized under the laws of a foreign country having their principal place of business in the district where such list is prepared.

Duplicates of such lists will be made by each collector, one copy thereof to be retained in his office, and the other, when completed, forwarded to the Commissianor of Internal Revenue. Blanks to be used in such cases will be furnished collectors; and for statistical purposes, and convenience of reference, all such corporations, companies and associations will be classified and listed, according to the nature of the business carried on, as follows

Class A- Financial and Commercial; Including banks, banking associations, trust companies, guaranty and surety companies, title insurance companies, building associations (if for profit) and insurance companies, not specifically exempt.

Class B-- Public Service: Such as railroads, steam-boat, ferry-boat and stage line companies; pipe-line, gas and electric light companies, express, transportation and storage companies; telegraph and telephone.

ClassC--Industrial and Manufacturing: Suchas mining,lumber and coke companies; rolling mills, foundry and machine shops;saw mills, flour, woolen, cotton and other mills; manufacturers of cars, automobiles, elevators, agricultural implementsand allarticles manufactured wholly or in part, from metal, wood or other material; manufacturers or refiners of sugar, molasses, syrups or other products; ice and refrigerating companies; slaughterhouse, tannery, packing or canning companies, etc.

Class D-- Mercantile: Including all dealers(not otherwise classed as producers or manufacturers)in coal, lumber grain, produce, and all goods, wares and merchandise.

Class E--Miscellaneous: Such as architects, contractors, hotel, theatre or other companies or associations, not otherwise classed.

When classified as above indicated, the names of the various corporations, companies and associations will be listed alphabetically, and will be numbered consecutively(commencing with No.1 in each class) and in forwarding returns or papers subsequently rendered or submitted by such corporations or companies, collectors will see that the same have placed thereupon the designating class-letter and number, corresponding with those noted on the lists herein required to be furnished.

Special instructions regarding the form of return to be rendered by such corporations, and as to the preparation of assessment lists by collectors, will be issued in due season.

Respectfully,
J. C. Wheeler, Commissioner.

DEFENDS HOWARD BOARD.

School Director Vigorously Upholds Rejecting of Bids.

Howard, Pa., Aug. 30.

EDITOR DORWORTH:

With your indulgence I would like to say a word regarding the recent action of the school board on the papering question. When the matter was brought before the board it was strongly opposed by several members and at the time of the letting their objections were again produced even more strenuously than before, and after considering the expense the board came to the decision not to paper. Of course it may have been a disappointment to the bidders, but, as it has been alleged by some who fain would be dictators to the several borough officers, there was no political prejudice on the part of any of the directors against the lowest bidder. Upon looking up the records it was observed that it was only 9 years since the rooms were papered and not 11 years, as has been stated. A closer inspection of the paper showed that only several square feet were damaged, and the fading is generally even.

We admit that "public office is a public trust" and want to save the taxpayers as much as we possibly can. We lowered the tax rate one mill this year and by strict economy can lower it another mill next year; at this particular time taxes are burdensome to most of our citizens and we are looking to the taxpayers' interests, and at the same time maintain the excellent standing of our schools. If sanitary conditions are to be taken into consideration the rooms never should have been papered. Just because the finances are in a good shape is no reason for squandering public money and we have not forgotten that this is a part of our trust, too. The majority of the taxpayers will uphold us for what we have done and the reasons set forth was our cause for turning down the bids. When industrial conditions are in better shape here the papering will in all probability be done.

ONE OF THE BOARD.

Well Worth Repeating.

Under the caption, "The Bellefonte Republican" the Coatesville "Record" pays a splendid tribute to this paper. The Coatesville "Record" is published by William W. Long, formerly city editor of the Philadelphia "Press". His remarkable success with the Coatesville "Record" is the talk of interior county newspaper circles. Because of his wide experience and highly valued judgment his estimate of the "The Republican" is well worth repeating. It follows:

> One of the brightest and most interesting of the many weekly newspapers on the Record's exchange list is the Bellefonte Republican. This journal which has long been established in the Centre County seat recently passed under the control and editorship of Charles E. Dorworth, for many years Political Editor of the Philadelphia Press and one of the best known and ablest newspaper men in the State.
> Since Mr. Dorworth has taken the helm The Republican has completely changed its appearance. Dressed in new type and with snappy headlines of the character of the metropolitan dailies the Republican attracts the readers by the very brightness of its make up and when one peruses its colums, he finds the real goods contained therein.
> On the editorial page the forceful writing of Mr. Dorworth is easily recongnized and his comments on state and national issues of a political nature are being read and copied all over the country. Its news pages show the effect of his careful editing and taking all in all The Republican is a newspaper of which the people of Bellefonte should well feel proud and business men will doubtlessly most liberally support with their advertising.

Congratulations and good luck to you, Charlie, you deserve all the good things that seem to be coming your way.

MRS. ROSA BOYER, 1421 Sherman Ave., Evanston, Ill., writes: "If any one has reason to praise Peruna it is surely myself.

"Last spring I became so run down from the serious effects of a lingering cold, that several complications united in pulling me down. I could neither eat nor sleep well, and lost flesh and spirit.

"I finally tried Peruna and it did wonders for me. In two weeks I was like another person, and in a month I felt better than I ever had before.

"I thank Peruna for new life and strength. I send you two pictures, so you can see what Peruna has done for me."

Better Than for Years.

Mrs. Mary F. Jones, Burning Springs, Ky., writes:

"I wish to speak a word in praise of your highly valued Peruna, as I have been blessed with the golden opportunity of giving it a fair and impartial test, and can say that I have had better health, far better, since I have been using it than for quite a number of years before.

"One of my neighbors had stomach trouble. I recommended Peruna to her, and now she is well and healthy, after having been pronounced hopeless by several physicians."

Our County at a Glance.

Howard.

Saturday next is the day set for the Lyons family reunion in the beautiful Schenck grove, near town. It will be in the form of a basket picnic and while these families are spending the day on the ridge others may bring their baskets and enjoy the day with them there.

The supervisors convention held in Bellefonte recently seems to have given inspiration to the road-makers in this vicinity and following out the incentive some of our streets and roads have been put in better condition. In the borough, Walnut Street is being repaired for some distance with a top dressing of stone which is quite objectionable to many at first but it will soon wear down and make a good street for years to come. The raking off of loose stones in many places has made much better roads and is an improvement that is appreciated by all who have occasion to use the public highways. "A stitch in time saves nine" is very applicable to road--making and the little damages should be repaired before they become a big nuisance.

Torrence Quigg and wife, of Johnsonburg, were recent visitors with relatives and friends in Centre and Clinton counties. Mrs. Quigg was formerly Miss Cora Candy of this place.

Mrs. Joseph McManigal. of Ridgway, was a guest last week, of her sister, Mrs. Samuel Kline.

Prof. J. C. Weirick, principal of the Howard schools, was a visitor with his brother, Alvie, in Altoona, last week.

The ladies of the Methodist church will hold their annual festival next Saturday evening, Sept. 4, on the school house lawn. The usual refreshments will be served and all are cordially invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Robb, of Johnsonburg, have been the guests of his brother, John, here and at his old home at Romola for the past ten days.

Charles E. Holter, who has been spending the past two months at Inlet, N. Y., arrived home last Friday evening. His health has been somewhat improved during his stay along the shores of the lake at that place.

A. C. Longee, formerly of this place, but now a restaurant-keeper at Lewistown Junction, was seriously ill with acute indigestion, on Wednesday of last week. His many friends are glad that he has partially recovered, at least, and hope that he may experience no further gastrinomical troubles.

John Gallagher and wife are rejoicing over their first born, a boy, which arrived last Friday.

Wm. Lucas, the famous slide trombone player in the Howard band, has been kept away from practice and is all out of tone since the arrival of a daughter at his home last Wednesday. Nevertheless he will be "Reddy" for the next band concert.

Cupid evidentiy has been lurking [illegible] recently, as indicated by the surprise sprung upon his many friends by Edward McMurtrie, the ever popular clerk at this famous hostlery. He quietly left town the forepart of last week and on Tuesday was married, in Delaware, to Miss Estella Mobley, daughter of E. S. Mobley, of Beech Creek. Miss Mobley had been visiting friends in Bellefonte and on Monday stated she was going to return home, but the young couple met somewhere and the wedding followed. Both are very popular young people in their home towns and their many friends wish them well in their journey over the sea of life.

The writer has frequently heard of the crow that dropped pebbles into a pitcher partly filled with water so as to bring the liquid high enough in the vessel to reach it with his bill, but never witnessed any such act on the part of a bird or animal until last week when watching several blackbirds. They were hopping about on the ground and happened upon a number of chips lying about. One by one they turned these over with their bills and were nearly always rewarded with a nice fat worm or several choice bugs such as are found there. In this manner they held our attention until they seemed to have enjoyed a hearty repast and then took their flight to their native haunts.

The Howard band is making preparations for another concert next week. Besides the usual good selections by the band there will be vocal music by some of our talented singers and recitations by those who are gifted along that line.

Dr. Jacobs, of Centre Hall, visited his aged father here, on Saturday.

Russell Dietz and sister, Josie, who have been attending school at Girard College, Philadelphia, returned home last week. Russell will return to the school in September.

Miss Lulu Schenck was the guest of Frank Wetzler and wife, at Milesburg, on Saturday.

Chauncy DeLong and mother, of Eagleville, were recent callers in Howard.

Wm. Yarnell returned to his home, in Bellefonte, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Heverly returned to their home in St. Louis, Saturday, after a pleasant visit of several weeks with his mother here.

Mrs. Furst P. Crider attended the funeral of her uncle, J. N. Dinges, at Boalsburg, on Monday.

Mrs. Caroline Comerford returned to her summer home from a visit, at Cresson, on Monday.

Joseph D. Diehl, our enterprising wholesale produce dealer, recieved two Cleveland automobiles on Monday from the Cleveland Auto. Company. Each is a 30-horsepower car and of the latest model. For the accommodation of the machines he will erect a barn 35x50 feet, balloon frame and brick-cased. George Graff, of Stormstown, will be the man at the wheel. While Joe takes a great liking to good horse flesh he could not resist the temptation of enjoying the pleasures of automobiling.

Prof. F. M. Pletcher, of Eagleville, spent several days last week at the home of his father.

H. Walter Holter was a visitor at the home of his brother, in Bellefonte, on Friday.

The Milesburg base ball team was given an example of the Howard way of playing ball, Saturday, when they appeared on the local diamond. The visiting team failed to score while our own boys piled up a dozen runs.

Mrs. R. S. Taylor and son were Bellefonte visitors last week.

Misses Edna Thompson and Esther Hall, of Snow Shoe, were the guests of Miss Lulu Holter last week.

Miss Verna Palmer, of Mill Hall, was the guest of Miss Gertrude Thomas, over Sunday.

Among those visiting at the home of James Ketner are Rev. Wm. Ketner, wife and son, from Parryville; Robert Ketner, from Stroudsburg; Noah Ketner and lady friend, Miss Hinselman, from Lewisburg.

Miss Amy Harter, from Mifflinburg, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. A. M. Yearick.

John Eby is visiting his parents, N. W. Eby's.

Mrs. R. M. Wolfe and daughters attended the lady's mother's funeral, Saturday, at Linden Hall.

After spending a week at the "Woodward House," Prof. Edmonds and wife left for their home, in Lewisburg, last Friday.

Mrs. Harriet Von Neida, an aged lady, is seriously ill.

Mrs. Emerick, from Centre Hall, is visiting friends in town.

Chas. Musser went to Washington Pa, last week as a delegate to the State Convention of the P. O. S. of A., held at that place.

Rev. William Ketner, from Parryville, preached a very interesting sermon in the E.Association church, Sunday evening.

Charles Knarr, having spent the summer in town, returned to his home, in Lewistown, Monday.

Ray Keiser, from New Columbia, was a guest at the home of Dr. Ard, Saturday and Sunday.

The lecture held in the M. E. Church Saturday evening, by Rev. Rhoda, was well attended.

Calvin Huss and wife from Spring Mills spent two days in town last week greeting their many friends.

Fowler.

Hello!

Here's Fowler, after a long delay.

The editor of "The Republican" tells me its time Fowler is getting into line, and I've promised to be on deck each week from this time on.

Our farmers are busy plowing for their Fall crops.

Mrs. J. T. Beckwith spent a day with friends at Tyrone.

Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Newman have returned from Niagara Falls. They report having had a delightful time.

Mrs. Catherine McGrady and Eva are spending some time at Philipsburg, visiting her son and daughter.

Mrs. D. O. Dunning made a business trip to Tyrone on Thursday.

Mrs. Ada Lewis is visiting Tyrone friends.

William Lego and family have returned from Niagara Falls, where they enjoyed a little vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. George Walk entertained relatives from Altoona.

Mrs. Edward McMonigal entertained her cousins on Saturday.

The P. O. S. of A. will hold a picnic at Hannah, Sept. 18.

Hello, Mt. Pleasant! Let me congratulate you. You are by far a better correspondent than Fowler. But, say, keep your eye on Fowler from this time on.

Sandy Ridge.

Mrs. Wynn and Mrs. France, of Philipsburg, visited at the home of Mrs. J. W. Ross, last week.

Misses Nan and Frances Lewis, of Dix, paid a visit to Mrs. Christ Cowher, last Friday.

Mrs. Annie Garland entertained her brother, Robert Linn and family, last week. They were moving from Bolivar to Clearfield and stopped off a few days with their friends here.

Miss Bessie Undercoffer, of Pittsburg, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Curt Ake.

Lyle Sanford and Wm. Divine, of Philipsburg, walked from that place to Sandy Ridge, distributing circulars for Harry Jones' Clothing Store. They reached Sandy Ridge near train time with sore feet and aching limbs. They took the 4:30 train for Philipsburg.

Miss Frances Emery is visiting friends in Julian.

Miss Margaret Garland with her aunt, Mrs. Howard Woomer, of Patton, is sojourning at Atlantic City.

Miss Velda Thomas, of Philadelphia, is visiting at the home of James Russell.

John Harrington and family, of Williamsport, are spending some time with their many friends here.

There was a dance held at Moshannon on Monday evening. It was an invitation dance, there being about fifteen couples present. Music was furnished by the Snow Shoe orchestra, Cramer and McGordy. Everybody reported having a fine time.

The Snow Shoe Cornet Band made a trip to Clarence on Thursday evening. Although Clarence has a band of its own, the boys thought they would go down and pay them a visit.

Our town was visited by a nice rain on Thursday, which was greatly needed.

Clarence Thompson, who has been visiting friends at Howard and other points, has returned home.

The Ping Pong, photographer is making a hit. Josephine says that he is all right. How about it, Joe?

James Musser, of Derry, spent a few days with friends last week. He looks good. Come again, James, we are always glad to see you.

Hello, Runville! What is the matter that we did not see you in "The Republican" last week? Did you have the blues? Guess I am not the only one who forgets to come around once in a while. Are you out gathering news? Listen, I want to tell you something. You people in Runville are too slow to catch cold. You live so far down in the hollow that you have to raise the sun in the morning with a derrick. Hark! I hear footsteps approaching. I think it is a corn husker from Runville. Good-bye, Polly, I don't know where I'se 'gwine, but I'ze on my way. Call again if you can't write.

This world and the next and then the fire works.

John Harrington and family, who have been residing at Williamsport, have moved back to our town. They have taken the house formerly occupied by Joseph Wade.

"Jack Johnson," the heavy-weight champion of our town, got into quite a scrap the other night [illegible] to her great strength she came out [illegible] scratch. Her opponent was one of the "bronchos." Josie is quite a boxer, but there would be no use in asking Packer about it because he took to the woods. Hey, Packer?

The Aeroplane Only a Toy.

While the authorities at Washington have been considering the expenditure of a large amount of money for further experimentation with flying machines, the British defence committee has just reported against aeroplanes and in favor of dirigible balloons. The success of Count Zeppelin with his balloon, which far outclassed that of all those who have been using aeroplanes, justifies the decision of the British committee. The aeroplane is like a kite and hardly more useful, while the balloon has been in use for years. It can be handled and manned satisfactorily, while any sudden change in the wind may upset or divert an aeroplane, to the peril of its navigators. Thus far, in spite of all the talk about the Wrights, Latham, Bleriot, and others, the aeroplane has proved itself nothing more than a toy. It is hoped that the Federal government will not permit the public moneys to be wasted on experiments with aeroplanes, when it has been established that the dirigible balloon offers greater usefulness for all the purposes of the army and the navy. We are glad to hear of the annulment of the contract for the Herring flying machine, and the statement that something like $16,000 of the original allotment for the development of aeronautics will accordingly be returned to the general fund of our army board of ordinance. From Leslie's Weekly.

Footwear In Summer.

Summer shoes and stockings should be of the lightest weight. Brown shoes are always cooler than black, being more porous, and white canvas shoes are delightful for summer wear. BLACK STOCKINGS SHOULD BE TABOOED IN HOT WEATHER. The dye is bad for the feet, sometimes really injurious. White stockings, of course, are the best of all, but tan or gray may be worn to great advantage.

How to Cure Insomnia In Summer.

Insomnia is more prevalent in summer than at any other period of the year. The excessive heat causes restlessness, and the HEART AND BRAIN ARE PROMPTED INTO INCREASED ACTIVITY.

A well known New York physician recommends the following method of inducing sleep in the torrid months:

"A bath of moderate duration in lukewarm water just before retiring will be found to be an encourager of sleep.

"But the person should take care not to dry himself thoroughly nor rub himself with a rough towel so that the circulation is stimulated.

"The idea is that by merely wiping off the body so that it is yet damp at the end of the bath the body retains the soothing and quieting effects of the warm water. The stimulus supplied by brisk rubbing would overcome those effects, as would water of extremes of temperature."

JOKES ON MONARCHS.

Some Daring Pranks Played Upon Royal Personages.

A FLOWER FOR THE KAISER.

Decorations That Made His Majesty Explode With Wrath—A Medical Diploma For a Prince of Wales—The Duke and the Stockbrokers.

Some years ago a paragraph appeared in a Berlin daily stating that Prince Henry, who had just returned from his visit to the United States, had brought home as a present to his brother a number of plants of a new variety of crimson carnation. "As every one knows," the paragraph concluded, "the red carnation is his imperial majesty's favorite flower."

On the day after the publication of this news the kaiser was due at Aix-la-Chapelle. A member of the town council suggested that every one in the town wear a buttonhole of the kaiser's favorite flower.

The suggestion was at once acted on. The frock coated members of the deputation which waited next morning on the platform each wore proudly a buttonhole of the deepest crimson.

The poor fellows could not conceive why the kaiser's demeanor was so freezing. He dismissed them with a few words, got into his carriage and drove off.

At the town hall was another deputation, similarly decorated. Then his majesty's wrath exploded. "What is the meaning of this insult?" he demanded. Some one explained, and then one of the kaiser's attendants took the mayor aside. "My dear sir," he said, "surely you know that the red carnation is the emblem of the Social Democrats and of all flowers the one which his majesty chiefly detests!"

Many years ago King Edward VII., then Prince of Wales, was the subject of a stupid hoax. He received a letter informing him of his unanimous election as honorary member of the Princeton medical faculty and signed by three students. With his invariable courtesy the recipient requested his private secretary to acknowledge it. The reply said, "His royal highness will remember with pride and satisfaction the mark of distinction received at the hands of the Princeton medical faculty."

As a matter of fact, there is not and never was such an organization.

As impudent a hoax as ever was heard of was perpetrated in 1904 upon a Belgian paper. A letter purporting to be in the handwriting and above the signature of Princess Louise of Coburg was received by the editor, who very foolishly published it without first assuring himself as to its genuineness.

This letter gave a long catalogue of the wrongs of Princess Louise and of her sisters and constituted a most brutal attack upon her father, the king of the Belgians.

The letter was at once copied by a number of other papers, including more than one in England. Naturally it gave great pain to the princess herself, and the only wonder is that a prosecution for libel was not the immediate result.

Some years ago a young American woman who was staying in Copenhagen made a bet with a friend that she would propose to the king of Denmark.

On one of the king's public reception days the American lady found her way to the royal residence.

"What can I do for you, madam?" asked the king.

"Your majesty, I desired to ask you if you would like to marry me?" was the reply.

The king merely smiled.

"I am afraid I am a little too old," he said, and at the same moment he beckoned to one of the officials to conduct the lady to the door. He had put her down as a harmless lunatic.

A joke of rather a rough order was played upon the first cousin of the emperor of Austria, the Archduke Salvator, once when he was in Paris. He was passing the bourse—the Parisian equivalent of the Stock Exchange—when his companion, a lanky young French count, suggested that he might look inside.

"If you walk straight in," he said, "no one will notice you. They will take you for a stockbroker."

The duke took him at his word, but of course he was no sooner inside than he was recognized as a sightseer. His silk hat was instantly spirited away, and he was at once surrounded by a mob of dealers with notebooks shouting fabulous offers to buy or sell stock.

The duke had a desperate struggle to reach the front lobby, and when at last he got there, hatless and breathless, he found that some genial soul had pinned a long price list to the tails of his coat.

It is not likely that any reigning sovereign ever got a more unpleasant scare than did Ferdinand of Bulgaria some five years ago. His private secretary, a young baron, was away in Austria on a vacation when a letter arrived for his royal master announcing that he did not propose to return and that he would be glad for the sum of £40,000; otherwise, he wrote, he would be compelled to sell a number of secret documents which he had taken away with him.

Instantly Prince Ferdinand dispatched a couple of secret service envoys in chase of his missing secretary, whom they ran to ground peacefully shooting on his own estate. Further investigation proved the missive to be nothing but a hoax.—London Answers.

GARDEN ENTERTAINING.

Feasts and Sewing Parties Among Flowers and Trees.

Bacon once said in his quaint way that a garden was the purest of pleasures. One modern American woman who calls her garden her hobby has made it a most useful hobby. There is a great difference between hobbies. Some are a nuisance to the possessor and his or her friends. Some persons ride their hobbies for their own pleasure, but no one else's. Some make a hobby a means of giving pleasure to every one around. One of the latter kind is a woman who writes in Suburban Life about her garden reception room.

"When I was a younger woman," she says, "an experienced entertainer gave me this good advice: 'When you entertain people let your hobby, if you have one, help you out.' So when my garden came to be one of my chief delights I conceived the idea of giving garden parties."

Her first party was held in the evening, with Japanese lanterns and decorations, but though the guests had a good time the beauty of the garden was lost in the darkness. This experience taught her that daytime is the time for a garden party.

One morning she looked out at the garden and saw that it was perfect. The syringas were in bloom, the roses were at their loveliest, and the blossoming honeysuckle was everywhere. Straightway she sat down and issued fifty invitations for a garden party for that afternoon.

"One thing I soon learned about garden parties," she says, "and that was that you cannot issue your invitations even one day before. Perfect weather and a dry lawn are absolutely necessary, and even a slight shower will wreck all one's plans."

Out on the lawn, shaded by huge trees, small tables were arranged, each one covered with a rose doily and adorned with a huge bunch of roses. In the summer house, which was a bower of climbing roses, two girls in fluffy pink dresses served punch. The ice cream was pink and white, and the little white cakes were ornamented with pink roses.

One July day she had a sewing party. The garden was a mass of phlox then—white, pale lavender and salmon pink. There were verbenas and balsams, too, heliotropes and poppies, and in the midst of the bloom the guests sat on comfortable veranda chairs, with rugs under them to protect the fidgety from possible bugs, and sewed a little, talked a great deal and ate cakes and ices.

When this woman has callers and the weather permits she serves tea on the lawn. Sunday suppers, weather permitting again, are eaten there in summer, and they are the pleasantest meals in the week. Whenever a guest comes from [redacted] the table is spread among the flowers, with a rug to protect the breakfasters from the dewy grass. "As my porch is not screened," says this resourceful woman, "I find it impossible to serve meals on it except early in the spring, before the fly season. But on the lawn, away from the house, the flies are not troublesome."

PURE FOOD IN THE HOME.

Patronize Only Honest Grocerymen Who Cover Their Wares.

In the warm season every housekeeper should formulate her pure food domestic rules and regulations, says Dr. Kate Lindsay in Housekeeper. If dependent upon the milkman for milk, select a conscientious dealer who can be depended upon to furnish clean and pure milk. If the milk is a home product, be just as careful to have it pure, fresh and clean. See to the health, feeding and stabling of the cows as carefully as the best dealer does to his. Patronize only honest, cleanly grocerymen who have covers to all their bins, showcases and other food receptacles and who keep the lids shut and have all food retainers dust, insect and vermin proof. Pure food means clean food. Clean food will mean a health and life saving measure to many thousands in the warm months. But to prevent food adulteration it must be practiced from the producer to the consumer, for the latter can so handle his supplies that all the care of the producer, manufacturer and middleman can be annulled. There is a source of canned food contamination often overlooked, and many cases of lead poisoning result from this cause. As soon as the tin cans used for the foods are opened they begin to rust and oxidize and form poisonous metal compounds which are very detrimental to health. Whenever a metal can of fruit or vegetables is opened it should be emptied at once and put into a glass dish or a porcelain one with a cover. Do not leave metal spoons in either fruit or vegetables.

Sauce Piquante.

Put one tablespoonful of capers into a mortar with the same quantity of chopped Spanish onion. Pound them to a smooth paste and then add, still pounding, one cupful of vinegar, two teaspoonfuls of made mustard, two teaspoonfuls of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of anchovy extract and one tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar.

A tablespoonful of mushroom catchup is an improvement, but if that is added the quantities of anchovy and tarragon vinegar may be slightly reduced.

Frozen Bananas.

Cut four bananas crosswise in thin slices, add two-thirds of a cupful of powdered sugar, let stand an hour, then add one quart of water and the grated peel of a lemon. When the sugar is dissolved put all in a freezer and freeze as you would ice cream.

The Wars of Our Country

XXVII.—The Black Hawk War

By Albert Payson Terhune

WHILE foreign foes had for many years left our nation in peace, a alarm was spread throughout the United States in 1831 by an important Indian uprising along the Mississippi, known to history as "Black Hawk's war."

Black Hawk was one of the bravest and most dangerous of Indian leaders. His real name was Mak-a-tae-mish-Kiakiak.

When the war of 1812 broke out Black Hawk and 500 of his braves volunteered their services to the British, who eagerly accepted the offer and conferred on the chief the honorary title of general. This action of Black Hawk naturally did not tend to add to his popularity with Uncle Sam. Accordingly, when the war of 1812 was over, and the nation was in a position to back up its demands by force, a treaty was formally ratified and Black Hawk, as well as the rest of his chiefs, signed it. A large part of the Sac and Fox Indians, under a chief known as Keokuk, crossed the Mississippi into Iowa to a reservation set aside for them. But Black Hawk, though he had signed the agreement, flatly refused to go. He said the land was still his and he induced hundreds of families in the tribes to remain with him.

There, for a time, he and his followers remained, unmolested, waxing yearly stronger and more arrogant in their possession. They grew to despise the power of the United States and to jeer at their fellow tribesmen who had obeyed the treaty.

But at last settlers began to invade this strip of debatable land. They ploughed up the Indians' crops, reared homesteads on the Sac and Fox village sites, destroyed their hunting grounds and broke up their fisheries.

The dispossessed savages flocked to Black Hawk for redress. He declared war on the United States and swooped down on the settlers with rifle and tomahawk to wrest from them by force the lands of his fathers. For the moment it seemed as though the rebellious chief would succeed in his mad attempt at blocking the resistless onrush of civilization. Then the government flew to arms. Among the border volunteers was a young Kentuckian, Abraham Lincoln by name.

BLACK HAWK'S LESSON.

Early in 1831 General Gaines and a body of United States troops were sent to put down the uprising. On June 25 of that year the two armies met in a bloody battle; but the desperate courage of the Indians availed nothing against the superior military discipline of the regulars. Black Hawk was defeated.

Gaines, pressing his advantage, drove the foe to the Mississippi. The Indians crossed the river into Iowa, to the Sac and Fox reservation, and Gaines retired, confident that the brief war was at an end. However, he reckoned without any knowledge of the chief's stubborn courage.

Next spring Black Hawk, with his braves, recrossed the Mississippi. He split up his army into separate bands and scattered them through Illinois and Wisconsin, where they attacked the white settlers and spread panic all along the frontier. Another United States force, led by General Scott, the hero of Lundy's Lane, was sent to put him down, but a cholera epidemic wrecked the expedition.

Emboldened by this, the Indians increased their depredations and carried their raids still further into the white men's country. General Dodge, with a third army, followed fast on the disastrous Scott attack. He rounded up the Indians and forced them to give battle (July 21, 1832) on the banks of the Wisconsin river. There he inflicted a terrible defeat on them. Before Black Hawk could recover from this blow he was attacked at Bad Axe river, on Aug. 2 by General Atkinson, who not only beat him in battle, but followed up his retreat so fiercely, striking blow after blow at the demoralized savages, that on Aug. 27 Black Hawk was compelled to yield.

The chief at this time was sixty-five years old and worn out by a lifetime of battling against overwhelming odds. He and his two sons and seven of his subchiefs were taken by their captors to New York, Washington and other large cities of the east. There they were bidden to gaze on the countless thousands of white men and told to judge for themselves what chance a mere handful of hostile savages would have against so mighty a nation, after which the captive Indians were sent to prison for nearly a year to reflect on what they had seen.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused from it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, brick-dust or sediment in the urine, head ache, back ache, lame back, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and better health in that organ is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. Swamp-Root corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. A trial will convince anyone.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, and don't let a dealer sell you something in place of Swamp-Root—if you do you will be disappointed.

Farm and Garden

THE CULTURE OF CABBAGE.

Soil and Condition For Successful Growth of Plants.

To be able to grow cabbage successfully in any season the soil should be in such a condition that the water will pass through it as freely as it would through a piece of pumice stone or porous rock. As a general rule, the poorer the soil the drier and more porous it is. Thus it is that on the comparatively poor farms better late cabbages are grown than in the market gardens that are very rich. A sod field broken early in the spring and well manured has generally been found to grow the best cabbage. This does not apply to the early crops. These do best on the soils that are rich and full of humus.

Low priced fertilizers sometimes give as good results as the higher priced goods; but, on the whole, it will pay to be liberal with nitrogen. The two experiments indicate that it is profitable to use nitrate of soda on the plant beds at the rate of 450 to 600 pounds per acre.

The cabbage is a native of western and southern Europe and has been used for human food from time immemorial. All of the types of cabbage, cauliflower, Brussels sprouts, collard and kale have sprung from the same original source—namely, Brassica oleracea, Linn. The wild type is still growing on the chalk cliffs of the English channel. On the cliffs of southeastern England is now found a plant similar to the Georgia collards.

There are three distinct types of cabbage with reference to the shape of the head—namely, round, oval and flat. Some varieties are distinct in type, while others partake of two or more shapes due to crossing in seed production. There is much variation in the shape, color, character and texture of the leaf, ranging from regular straight edges, almost white, smooth and tender, to irregular, almost fringed edges, dark purple color and coarse, tough texture.

Generally speaking, all varieties are hardy, but there is some variation in hardiness. Usually the purplish green varieties with crinkled and fringed leaves are hardier than the whitish green sorts with smooth, regular leaves. The cold resisting varieties are also the most heat resisting.

For a very early crop the seed may be sown in a well prepared seed bed outside in September and the plants be wintered over in a cold frame or by mulching with straw in a sheltered place. These plants may be set out very early in spring, long before spring grown plants may be used. To make extra good plants they will need to be taken from the seed bed and be pricked out two inches apart in other beds. By setting a succession of plants the crop may be constant from May or June until Christmas.

The plants of early varieties are set out in spring as early as the weather permits in rows three feet apart and two feet apart in the rows. The fall grown plants are often planted in the field in November. Furrows are turned where the rows are to be and the plants are set low in the furrows, so as to be protected. North and south furrows with plants set on the east side are satisfactory, although east and west furrows are sometimes preferred. Later varieties require more room. Early plants must be set deep—that is, so the base of the leaves is below the ground. If freezing weather comes the plants may be covered with earth until danger from frost is over.

The illustration showing the roots of a cabbage is an interesting study.

Analysis of Sorghum.

Analysis shows that, considering the amount of protein and fat contained in sorghum, it is about equal to timothy hay as feed. In point of the amount of nitrogen, free extract, it is about half as rich in these elements as timothy. Timothy contains 5 per cent protein, 45 per cent nitrogen, free extract, and 3 per cent fat. Sorghum contains 4.5 per cent protein, 23 per cent nitrogen, free extract, and 3.25 per cent fat.

Fraudulent Cheese.

The bureau of chemistry of the United States department of agriculture has come out flat footed in answer to the question "When is cheese not cheese?" They say that when it is "soaked curd" it cannot be sold as cheese. Pseudo cheese is produced by soaking the curd at a certain stage in cold water, draining it and putting the curd to press. This treatment is carried on solely for fandamental purposes.

LUMBER CUT OF 1909.

Reduction Shown by Reports From More Than 30,000 Sawmills.

Every farmer in the United States must be interested in the lumber produced. During the year 1908 31,231 sawmills in the United States manufactured 33,289,369,000 feet of lumber, according to a preliminary report issued by the bureau of the census. These mills also cut 12,106,483,000 shingles and 2,986,684,000 lath. Lumber manufacturing, like every other industry, felt the effects of the business depression which began in October, 1907. Consequently the production in 1908 was below that for the previous year. In 1907 the cut of 28,850 sawmills was 40,256,154,000 feet, the highest production ever recorded. Nothwithstanding, therefore, that in 1908 reports were received from 8 per cent more mills than in 1907, the decrease in lumber cut reported by them was slightly over 17 per cent.

Washington, as for several years, still ranks first among the states in lumber production, its cut in 1908 being 2,915,928,000 feet—a decrease of 22.8 per cent over the cut in 1907. Nearly all the lumber manufactured in Washington is Douglas fir, the market for which was seriously affected by the panic. Louisiana ranks second, with 2,722,421,000 feet, a decrease of 250,000,000 feet, or 8.4 per cent, from the cut in 1907. Louisiana is first in the production of both yellow pine and cypress. Mississippi was the third state in lumber production in 1908 with a total of 1,861,016,000 feet—a decrease of 11 per cent from the cut in 1907.

Arkansas ranked fourth with 1,656,991,000 feet, a decrease of nearly 17 per cent from the previous year's output, and Wisconsin fifth with 1,613,315,000 feet against 2,003,279,000 feet in 1907. In Texas, where the lumber industry is confined almost exclusively to yellow pine, the falling off was very heavy. The total cut of the state in 1908 was 1,524,008,000 feet, a decrease of 31.6 per cent from the cut in 1907.

Eight other states manufactured more than one billion feet each of lumber last year. In the order of importance they were: Michigan, Oregon, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Alabama, North Carolina and West Virginia. California, Maine and other states which reported more than one billion feet each in 1907 went just below that figure in 1908.

While there are many very large sawmills in the United States, the small mills far outnumber the large ones. Many of these small mills are in the states which are not now of first rank in lumber production. The statistics for New York were collected by the forest, fish and game commission of that state, which secured reports from 2,291 mills. In Pennsylvania 2,224 mills reported to the census, and in Virginia 1,937 mills.

Yellow pine, Douglas fir, white pine, oak, hemlock and spruce, in the order named, were the woods cut into lumber in the largest quantity.

Sixteen Melons In Two Layers.

The basket shown in the accompanying illustration is of the half bushel climax type. It holds sixteen melons, packed in two layers. The bottom of the basket is smaller than the top and must have smaller melons. The top layer must come one and a half inches above the basket edge to permit proper covering. The packer must see that every melon is placed firmly in position, and the basket must present a neat and attractive appearance.

How Men Differ.

The difference in men is often astonishing. The corn growers near Des Moines, Ia., have been satisfied with a crop bringing $12 an acre, and yet the son of a stonemason recently came among them and made as high as $46 an acre out of tomatoes.

In the last seven years this young man has made $18,000 worth of improvements on a little farm of only thirty-two acres. He uses very little manure, but a great deal of water. He makes $2,500 a year on lettuce alone. Other men find farming a slow business, while this young man makes a fortune out of it with all ease. The difference is certainly strange.

Remedy For Sick Calves.

A stockman claims that when calves three or four days old become sick and die with scours it is due to indigestion, apparently, and yields to treatment with pepsin if taken in time. A teaspoonful twice a day given in a little warm milk after feeding will cure it and if given when the calf is born and continued for a few days will prevent it. The pepsin is the common kind sold in drug stores and can be purchased by the pound.

Good Hay.

Good hay can only be made by cutting the grass as soon as it heads out and clover as soon as the heads are in full bloom. It is a mistake to wait until the heads turn brown. There is nothing in the theory that sunshine alone makes hay. Air is as much a factor as sunshine. Curing mainly in the windrows and haycocks is now practiced by many of our best hay specialists.

Skill Wins In a Heeling Match.

By looking at the accompanying picture you will see just what is needed to prepare for a heeling match. A stout broomstick for what you might appropriately call your "heel bit" and two lengths of strong clothesline or light rope securely knotted to each end of the stick form the reins. Grasp the reins firmly in your clinched fists and draw the heel bit taut so that the balls of your feet are off the ground and your weight resting entirely on your heels.

The course must be short, as the race must be run entirely on the competitors' heels. This would not seem at all hard, but the heel bits must be kept in place, and it is this condition which makes the race difficult. The second you lift your heels from the ground there is a great chance of your heel bit slipping out of its position, which disqualifies you.

You are also disqualified if you let the ball of your foot touch the ground, a ruling that will compel you to proceed slowly and with care.

TAILS OF ANIMALS.

They Enable Their Possessors to Turn In the Air.

An ingenious model has been constructed to show why a cat in falling always alights on its feet. The illustration cat consists of a cardboard cylinder, with four rods stuck in it for legs and a tail devised on similar principles, and the object is to show that a cat's faculty of falling on its feet depends on the rotation of its tail.

Some interesting information on this problem is given by the superintendent of a zoological garden, who has made several experiments. The faculty of always falling on the feet is one which is especially developed, he claims, by climbing and leaping animals, in which category are included all the cat tribe, monkeys, squirrels, rats and most lemurs. The instinct is born in them, and the art of twisting is performed without any conscious effort on the part of the animal.

The upshot is that the tail plays an important part in the turning process. "All tree inhabiting monkeys have long tails," says this authority, "and there is no the slightest doubt that the tail is of the greatest possible advantage to all climbers in helping them to turn. It also acts as a good balancer. You may see a squirrel walk along a tightly stretched wire or string, swinging its tail from side to side, just as a tight rope walker balances his pole.

"Some years ago I had some rats whose tails had been cut off, and they were not such good climbers as ordinary rats. And it is just the same with monkeys—those which have not long tails are not so good at climbing and cannot leap to the same extent as the others. It is noticeable that monkeys which have given up climbing trees have lost their tails."

What Am I Doing?

The players in this game seat themselves in a row, and the leader of the game takes his place behind them, beginning at the top of the row. He makes some absurd gesture and then asks the person behind whom he is standing, "What am I doing?" If the player replies incorrectly, and he generally does, he is doomed to stand up and imitate in silence the gesture he could not guess until he has leave to sit down.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR CANDLES.

New Electric Device Which Combines Beauty and Utility.

Every woman has realized for some time past that the use of the candle as a table decoration was attended by danger and other shortcomings, and a substitute has been eagerly sought. The solution of the problem has not been found in electricity, for the reason that lamps of this character lack the feature of portability, and their use also requires the presence of wires piercing the cloths and tables. A New York man has recently designed a piece of table decoration which takes the place of the candles on the dining room table in the home as well as the hotel and cafe.

The device is a pretty design, embracing a silver receptacle capable of holding a single storage cell. The battery stores sufficient energy to keep the lamps aglow for fourteen hours, and the illumination emanates from three tungsten lamps supplied with a switch for controlling them. Fitting neatly over the stand is a shallow glass dish containing cut flowers and water. The former are supported by a cut glass disk with numerous holes, into which the flower stems, etc., project. The lamp thus serves as a flower vase as well, and the effect of the light passing through the glass and water and playing around the flowers and leaves is very pretty indeed.

Care of the Teeth In Summer.

Horace Fletcher is of the opinion that in the summer the dust laden atmosphere is particularly injurious to the teeth. He says:

"Dental defects cause far more disease than the public imagines.

"In the dust laden atmosphere of towns the teeth are very liable to disease," he says, "and even when healthy are necessarily dirtied. Some go so far as to advise all town dwellers daily to WASH OUT THE NASAL PASSAGES AND TO GARGLE THE THROAT; but, whatever may be thought of this, it is certain that under existing dietetic conditions special means are needed in order to keep the mouth and teeth clean.

"When man fed on raw food this was not necessary, the food itself and the copious flow of saliva induced by prolonged mastication effectually cleansing these parts, but under present conditions food tends to remain within the mouth, especially between the teeth and in their crevices, and therefore special means are needed to remove it.

"This is done by cleaning the teeth and by rinsing the mouth after each meal."

Mrs. Ollie C. Campbell and son, Lee, of Barnesboro, have been visiting relatives in this vicinity, for the last three weeks. Ollie Campbell is a Bellefonte boy who is making his mark in the world.

Many persons attended the annual basket picnic of the United Brethren Church, at Mt. Pleasant, on Saturday. The Port Matilda band and a fife and drum corps furnished lots of music for the occasion.

Clande Hull returned, Monday, to his home, in Philadelphia, having spent a pleasant vacation with friends at this place. During his sojourn here Mr. Hull gave several charming mandolin solos at the Scenic.

Mrs. John Curtin departed, on Friday, for Philadelphia, where she will visit at the home of her brother, William S. Furst. Before returning she will attend the wedding on Saturday next, of Miss Jane Breeze, at Downingtown.

Deputy Sheriff James B. Strohm, who was injured while attempting to capture a prisoner escaping from the Bald Eagle Valley train, near Port Matilda, has so far recovered as to be about on crutches. The leg which was hurt at the ankle is in a plaster cast.

Mrs. C. M. Showers, who was called to nurse little Mildred Brown, daughter of Recorder and Mrs. Wm. Brown, who is recovering nicely after a severe attack of cholera infantum, has returned to Alto, where she will again take charge of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Thompson's baby.

Just to prove to us that he does have bees and that they are much busier than the loafers in front of "The Republican" office, Emanuel Noll called the other day with two pounds of honey carefully tucked under his arm. Unlike Bryan in his campaigns, Emanuel was there with the goods. With the bees abundantly able to take care of themselves and everything going along smoothly at the Pennsylvania baggage station, Emanuel departed yesterday for Clark Lake, Michigan, for a two weeks' visit with his daughters, Rebie and Mrs. C. F. York. At Toledo he will be joined by Professor John Lejeal, of Erie, who is well known in Bellefonte and who will also be a guest of the Yorks at their palatial country home. Mr. Noll and Professor Lejeal are old cronies, both fond of fishing and boating and a good time in general, so that the next two weeks will pass only too quickly on the big York estate. Miss Rebie Noll will accompany her father home.

Public schools open Monday morning, next.

Miss Margaret Thomas will entertain at bridge this afternoon.

Miss Lizzie Barnes, of Bellefonte, was admitted, Monday, to the hospital

Miss May Taylor was a visitor to Williamsport on Thursday of last week.

Miss Julia Mendels, of Baltimore, is visiting at the home of her uncle, M. Fauble.

Misses Mary and Lizzie Saylor returned, Saturday, from a ten days' visit to Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. A. M. McCann, of New York, greeted old friends in town over Sunday.

Charles Tripple was an over-Sunday guest at the home of his sister, Mrs. Harry Yeager.

Clarence Bolton, of Wheeling W. Va., a former Academy boy, visited friends in town over Sunday.

Mrs. George W. Atherton and daughter, Miss Helen, of State College, spent Monday in Bellefonte.

John Furst came up from Williamsport yesterday and is a guest at the Furst home, on Linn street.

John M. Bullock has become a member of the firm of Montgomery & Co. A good man in the right place.

Rev. J. A. Platts and family returned, yesterday, from a summer's outing on the banks of Lake Seneca, near Lenora, N. Y.

Mrs. Daniel Clark, nee Lulu Hoy, and little son, Howard, of Clarksburg, W. Va., are visiting Grandmother Barnhart, near Curtin.

Mrs. Harry E. Jenkins and son, Raymond, returned Friday from a month's vacation, as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Moyer, at Rebersburg.

Mrs. Amalia Newman, returned to her home in Altoona, Saturday, after a pleasant month's visit with her daughters, Misses Hannah and Nettie Newman.

Mrs. Lettie Stover and child, of Hagerstown, Md., and Miss Lulu Stover, of Altoona, are visiting at the home of Miss Sarah Stover, on East Bishop street.

Edmund Hayes has accepted the position of book-keeper with the Bellefonte Steam & Gas Co., formerly filled by Harry Jackson, now clerk at the Centre County Bank.

Wm. Hurley, of Philipsburg, father of Sheriff Hurley, is a guest at the home of the latter on East High street. Mrs. Isabelle Hartzel, of Kansas, an aunt of Sheriff Hurley, is also visiting there.

Those who will attend the Breeze-Baker wedding, at Downington, Saturday, are: Mrs. George F. Harris, Mrs. John M. Shugert and two children, Mrs. John Curtin, Wallace Gephart and Henry Linn.

On Thursday, Sept. 9, at the St. Paul's A. M. E. Church, a leader's reception will be given. The members of Class 2 will crown their leader, Edward Overton. A splendid program has been arranged, everybody is invited and the admission is free.

"Love" Lane was a winner on Tuesday, in the first rounds at the tennis tournament of the Altoona Cricket and Golf Club. He brought home three silver cups last week, trophies of his victories in the tennis tournament, at Franklin.

Emil Joseph moved on Monday into the Gardner home, at the corner of Spring and Howard Streets. Dr. David Dale is now occupying the Joseph house, which he recently purchased. The Gardners have taken several rooms in the Hayes house, on Spring Street, formerly tenanted by the Dales.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Rees, of Patton, spent Sunday at the home of the former's parents, Internal Revenue Collector and Mrs. G. W. Rees. Its only a few years ago since Will. was running about in knee breeches, but nowadays he is taller and better looking than his father. Will. is "making good" at Patton. He is the kind of young men Bellefonte needs at home.

The most disconsolate man in Bellefonte these days is Andrew J. Cook. Mrs. John Hinman Gibson returned to her home at Lansdowne, on Saturday, and, of course, took the baby, Margaret, along. Grandfather Cook now sees through smoked glasses, has no appetite and simply refuses to take a cheerful view of life. With this state of affairs prevailing it is pretty easy to figure out that one of these fine mornings Grandfather and Grandmother Cook will be taking the earliest train for Lansdowne.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward Fleming have removed to Harrisburg, where the former has been engaged as a professor in mathematics in the Harrisburg High School. They have already become nicely settled in apartments at the Capital. Ward Fleming is one of the finest young men of Bellefonte and his many friends wish him lots of luck in his new field. With his natural talent for teaching, his splendid education and devotion to his work Mr. Fleming's success in the Harrisburg schools is assured. Mr. Fleming is a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Fleming. His father devotes the greater part of his time in Harrisburg, where he has a most desirable position in the State Department. While it would seem as if the Flemings were drifting to Harrisburg their love for Bellefonte is such that no matter where they may happen to be this will always be home.

Monday will be Labor Day.

J. Thomas Mitchell is home after a week in Philadelphia.

Miss Nell Erkley, of State College, is visiting friends at Howard.

F. F. Kelly, of Clarence, was a busy man in town, on Tuesday.

Mrs. Katherine Burnett chaperoned a party to Penn cave on Monday.

Mrs. Ambrose Sloteman, of Lock Haven, spent several days in town this week.

Mrs. John I. Olewine and son, Harris, are visiting relatives in Lock Haven and Williamsport.

E. M. Marrley, of Benore, and James Sullivan, of Snow Shoe, were business visitors in town, Tuesday.

Mrs. Wilbur Baney and sister, Miss Florence Lamb, departed, Monday, on an extended journey to Niagara Falls.

Miss Lois Calderwood departed, yesterday, for Dennison, Ohio, called there by the serious illness of her mother.

Rev. John Hewitt returned home on Wednesday, and will hold the regular services in the Episcopal church on Sunday.

Gamble, Gheen & Co. are making rapid progress with their new concrete forebay, near the Pennsylvania passenger station.

Mrs. Maria Reeser, of Lamb Street, yesterday moved her household goods to State College, where she will make her future home.

Henry Keller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Keller, spent several days at Williamsport, last week, where he had his eyes treated and was fitted out with "specs."

Lawyer J. Kennedy Johnston has moved into the offices of E. R. Chambers, opposite the Court House. A partnership has not been formed and just as soon as health will permit Mr. Chambers will return to active practice.

Harry Miller, who has a very fine position as car inspector, at Tyrone, was in town with Mrs. Miller and the children, on Monday night. They returned to Tyrone on Tuesday, Harry's business not permitting him to make a very extended visit anywhere at any time.

Mrs. W. W. Prince and daughter, Miss Rose, returned, Saturday, to their home in Pittsburg, having been entertained for some time at the home of Mrs. Donald S. Potter. They were accompanied by "Billy" Potter. On the following day Miss Millicent Prince, who has also been visiting at the Potter home, returned to Pittsburg. My, but Grandmother Prince and Auntie Prince won't do a thing but show "Billy" the Smoky City.

Charles P. Hilder, of Philadelphia, formerly of this place, greeted old friends in town this week. "Charley" has grown stouter since we last saw him and also better looking. He is now a master sign painter and is called to all parts of the country on intricate jobs. He has just completed a tour of California and the western states and says that although the wild and wooly westerners are not superstitious they are great believers in signs.

Hon. John J. Henderson, of Meadeville, and George Pearson, of Pittsburg, were over-Sunday guests at the home of General and Mrs. James A. Beaver. Judge Henderson is a colleague of Judge Beaver on the Superior Court bench. Mr. Pearson is prothonotary of the Supreme and Superior courts, in Pittsburg. He was formerly chief clerk of the House of Representatives and was private secretary to General Beaver when the latter was Governor.

Charged With Assault.

William Franseau, of Hecla Park, was arrested, Monday, charged with assaulting his wife. At the hearing, Tuesday morning, Mrs. Franseau alleged that she had been inhumanely treated and that she would apply for a divorce. After hearing the evidence Squire Keichline bound the defendant over for court. Bail to the amount of $300 was furnished.

Thirsty people now drink "Trickle"—GET IT AT GREEN'S

PROF. J. ANGEL.

EYESIGHT SPECIALIST.

Wednesday Morning until Thursday Evening, Sept. 22-23.

TO MY PATRONS: Having become established in Centre and adjoining counties as a successful eye specialist I have concluded that it will be to the best interest of myself and the public to make a reduction of 25 per cent in all my charges. This will enable those who have felt they could not afford to pay former prices to secure proper treatment of their eyes at the lowest possible expense.

If you wish to save your eyesight and money too, don't fail to call on Prof. Angel. All parents are advised to have their children's eyes examined, especially those that go to school. You will thereby make a good scholar and avoid suffering. At the Brockerhoff House, Wednesday morning until Thursday evening, Sept. 22nd and 23rd.
